World Bank Heads Seek To Solve German Crisis

Runs On Banks In Germany Witnessed After One Collapses

Government Steps in When Darmstaedter Bank Closes Its Doors; Stock Exchanges Throughout Germany Keep Doors Closed; Opposition Parties Demand Chancellor Call Session of Reichstag to Meet Crisis

Canadian Press
Basel, July 13.—A dramatic battle for Germany's economic salvation developed in the directors' room of the Bank for International Settlements here this afternoon, with Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, who brought the authoritative and latest word from the Berlin government on the financial crisis, present.

Landing here after a hasty plane flight from his distressed capital city, the Reichsbank president was ushered into the presence of other chiefs of central banks and United States executives, who awaited his declaration with unceasing anxiety.

The fast traveling round German at once began to reveal to his colleagues what the Berlin government required or wished in order to save Germany's financial structure from complete chaos. Whether his report consisted of demands, concessions or pleas was a matter of speculation around the bank headquarters, where rumors of political and fiscal possibilities circulated excitedly.

Shut away privately, the directors of one of the world's most powerful banking combinations struggled to reach some agreement which would ensure the troubled situation now threatening the economic stability of Europe. Results of their deliberations were expected to be announced this evening.

REICHSTAG DEMAND
Berlin, July 13.—The Communist and National Socialist parties to-day served on the government a demand for early convocation of the Reichstag in view of the political situation abroad and the economic situation at home.

OFFICERS CONSULTED
Paris, July 13.—Marshal Petain and Marshal Lyautey and other higher officers of the French Army had lunch to-day with Premier Laval at the Ministry of War and it was understood the conversation had to do with the situation in Germany.

No decision was taken, since a number of foreign military attaches were present, but Minister of War Maginot later issued a denial of a newspaper report that preparations had been made to reinforce the frontier guard.

APPOINTMENT NOW PENDING
New Lieut.-Governor of B.C. Not Named Yet Is Answer to Howe-Rumor

Special to The Times
Ottawa, July 13.—No appointment has yet been made to the Lieutenant-Governorship of British Columbia. It was learned in informal discussions with cabinet ministers here to-day as a result of a press dispatch naming Hon. B. L. Howe as the new lieutenant-governor of the province. It is understood the appointment is pending, however, but the necessary order-in-council has not been passed by the cabinet and the next holder of the office is unknown here.

"I know nothing about it," Premier Bennett stated when questioned on a press dispatch that Hon. B. L. Howe, provincial secretary in the Tolmie government, had been appointed Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia.

As stated a few days ago, Hon. J. A. Macdonald, Chief Justice of British Columbia, will continue to be administrator of the province until official action in the way of an appointment has been taken.

TARIFF BOARD BILL VOTE IN SENATE IS AWAITED

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 13.—The action the Senate will take on the tariff board bill is awaited with considerable interest on Parliament Hill, where some expect it will provide the first clash of the upper chamber with the present government. The bill was passed in the Commons last week after a stormy debate.

If Senator Dandurand, Liberal leader in the Senate, could get all his supporters out, he could command a majority, for there are forty-eight Liberals and forty-seven Conservatives even when Patrick Burns and Arthur Macdonald, named last week to the red chamber, are counted. The new senators will likely be in Ottawa before the

ROYAL ARCANUM OPENS SESSION HERE TUESDAY

High Officers From All Parts of Canada and U.S. Will Be Here For Important Session

Two Hundred and Fifty Visitors Will Spend Five Days in This City

Leaders of the Royal Arcanum, numbering approximately 250 and headed by Harold C. Knoepfel of New York, Supreme Regent, will arrive in Victoria to-morrow afternoon at 12.45 o'clock from Seattle for their fourteenth international convention. On their arrival they will be extended a civic reception by Mayor Ansonby in the Empress Hotel, where they will register for the gathering.

The Supreme Council will continue its private meetings on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons, while other members of the party will enjoy drives over the Malahat and to Butchart's Gardens on different days. On Thursday evening the visitors will be guests of the local Majestic Council at the Shrine Auditorium. At this ceremony the degree teams of the Victoria branch, champions of the jurisdiction of Washington and British Columbia, will perform their drills.

ARRANGE GOLF MATCHES
Golf matches have also been arranged for the convention and will be played by those not engaged at the sessions or in taking drives around the city.

Each evening the visitors will assemble at dinner in the Tudor Grill of the Empress, which has been exclusively reserved for them for dances and dinners during their stay here.

LAURA INGALLS FLYING ACROSS UNITED STATES

Wichita, Kansas, July 13.—Laura Ingalls, winging her way eastward from California to attempt a solo transatlantic hop from New York to Paris, landed here at 11:04 a.m. from Waynoka, Okla.

STORES TO STAY OPEN ON MONDAY
MERCHANTS SAY

Victoria stores will remain open as usual on Monday next. It was decided by the retail group of the Chamber of Commerce at a special meeting this morning.

The merchants, however, will co-operate as much as possible with the celebration committee to make the events of the day a success, and plan to decorate their stores.

After considerable discussion, the retail group set the week from August 31 to September 5, when the fair will be on here, as a special shopping week. Arrangements to make the event particularly attractive to the buying public of Victoria, Vancouver Island and Gulf Islands will be in the hands of a special committee.

vote is taken. However, people who follow the Senate's proceedings closely expect more Liberal than Conservative senators will be unable to attend.

No doubt the Senate opposition will propose an amendment similar to that the Liberals proposed in the House, namely, that the members of the new tariff board be elected "during pleasure," instead of for ten years.

EUROPE'S FINANCE TANGLE KEEPS LEADERS BUSY

The first visit of a Secretary of the Treasury of the United States to Europe in many years is that of Andrew W. Mellon. He went to smooth over rough places in the war debts moratorium negotiations, and now, with those discussions no more than completed, the government and bank leaders of Europe have a new problem of major importance to solve in the crisis in Germany, which already has caused the Darmstaedter Bank, one of the republic's largest, to close. When the above picture was taken Mr. Mellon (left), was talking with M. Flandin (right), French Finance Minister, at the Ministry of the Interior in Paris.

Walkathon Wedding Brings Ruling Home Marriages Are Public

Strangers Have Right to Enter Private Homes to View House Weddings, Deputy Attorney-General O. C. Bass, K.C., Asserts; Government to Rule on Eligibility of Vancouver Walkathon Wedding for Registration

Declaring that the basic English principle that "a man's house is his castle" did not apply when a citizen was celebrating in his home the sacred rite of giving his daughter in marriage, and that no stranger could legally be restrained from entering any residence where such a ceremony was in progress, Oscar Bass, K.C., Deputy Attorney-General, this morning declared:

"Rev. Otto R. Karlstrom, who recently officiated at an alleged marriage ceremony at a Vancouver walkathon, is apparently laboring under a misapprehension as to the meaning of a public place within the terms of the Marriage Act. It is distinctly provided that marriages must be celebrated with open doors, unless specific permission otherwise is included in the license."

Mr. Bass pointed out that the fact that the Vancouver walkathon marriage actually did take place with open doors, and that during the actual exchange of vows anyone could have entered the arena, was regarded by Mr. Bass as of little importance. "The fact remains that the marriage was the chief attraction of a show. The whole affair was repugnant to the deep veneration and respect British people pay to one of the most sacred sacraments. Even the ancient pagans treated the marriage ceremony

WAUCHOPE TO BE COMMISSIONER OF PALESTINE

London, July 13.—The King has accepted the resignation of Sir John Chancellor as High Commissioner for Palestine, and has approved as his successor Lieut.-Gen. A. G. Wauchope, who since 1929 had been in command of the forces in the Northern Ireland district.

Sir John's resignation will take effect November 1, the date of the termination of the period for which he accepted appointment.

PLANE MAIL CONTRACTS EXTENDED

Ottawa, July 13.—Air mail contracts, of which expiry notices for July 15 were issued by the Post Office Department several weeks ago, have been extended until August 15 for Hungary, and by officials of the Post Office Department to-day. Not until the Post Office estimates have been reviewed in the Commons and the amounts of money available are known will any definite action be taken in connection with the air mails.

Magyar-Endres Plane to Be Refueled at Harbor Grace, Nfld., After Hop From N.Y.

Aviators Hope to Cross Atlantic and Land Somewhere in Hungary

Canadian Press
New York, July 13.—The Radio Corporation of America reported the monoplane Justice for Hungary, flying from New York to Harbor Grace, Nfld., on the first leg of a proposed flight to Budapest, had passed Eastport, Maine, at 1:15 p.m. (10:15 a.m. Victoria time).

START WAS SURPRISE
Roosevelt Field, New York, July 13.—After waiting almost two years for just the right combination of conditions, atmospheric and mechanical, Alexander Magyar and George Endres took off to-day on the first leg of a flight to Hungary.

They expected to reach Harbor Grace, Nfld., before dark and after replenishing their fuel supply begin the Atlantic hop in the morning. They hope to fly non-stop from Newfoundland to Budapest, or at least to some point within the borders of Hungary.

DURANLEAU TO INQUIRE INTO RADIO BANNING

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 13.—In the Commons this afternoon, Angus MacInnis, Labor, Vancouver South, called attention to a newspaper report that official action had been taken to discontinue the use of the radio by Dr. Lyle Telford, who had been delivering radio speeches in British Columbia. Was "free speech" to be curtailed he asked.

"Free speech on the radio," remarked a member.

Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine, stated he had no personal knowledge of the matter, but would make inquiries.

ASA KEYES OUT OF JAIL SOON

San Quentin Prison, Cal., July 13. The State Prison Board fixed the term of Asa Keyes, former Los Angeles County district attorney, at five years. Keyes, who has served sixteen months, will be free in approximately three more months, the board said, as the final two years of the sentence are to be served on parole.

MORE RAIN PREDICTED

Unsettled Weather Will Continue, Weatherman Says; No Sign of Break

Continued unsettled weather, with cloudy skies and showers, keeping the city cool, was forecast by F. Napier Denison, the weather man at Gonzales Observatory, to-day, since Saturday, when the recent rain started one-third of an inch has fallen. With this precipitation and every indication of more during the week, he expected the month of July to keep up its average.

The rain area extended to Puget Sound and falls were recorded in the Okanagan, Kootenay and Prince George districts.

While the moisture put a damper on outings planned over the week-end, it proved a boon to forest rangers, who are generally facing one of the most hazardous periods of the year with respect to fires during July.

Two Victoria Golfers Will Be Members of B.C. Team in Inter-provincial Match

Harold Lineham, Victoria, Will Act as Coach; Will Play in Canadian Amateur

Vancouver, July 13.—President W. S. Charlton, of the British Columbia Golf Association, announced to-day selection of the players who will represent the province in the inter-provincial match in Montreal on August 7 and 8. The team will be Freddy Wood, Don Gowan and Kenny Black, Vancouver, and Bob Morrison and Harold Brynjolfson, Victoria. Following the match they will play in the Canadian championships the week of August 10. Harold Lineham, Victoria, has been prevailed upon to accompany the players as coach. The party will leave Vancouver on Tuesday, July 28.

Club authorities regard the team as the strongest that could be named to represent British Columbia. The four to play in the match will be named the night before the event. The last and only other time B.C. had a team in the inter-provincial was at Jasper three seasons ago when Freddy Wood, Jack Fraser, A. Bull and Cecil Coville finished second to Ontario.

While in the east, the Coast party will make a strong bid for the Canadian championships for British Columbia next year.

AUTOGYRO FLIES FROM MONTREAL TO WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, July 13.—En route to join the Transcanada Air Pageant fleet now in Regina, the autogyro piloted by Capt. Godfrey Dean of the Fabricated Aircraft Company of Canada, landed at Stevenson Field here this afternoon from Montreal.

Capt. Dean left Montreal shortly before noon on Saturday and brought his strange "windmill" craft down at the local airport at 2:49 o'clock (12:40 p.m. Victoria time) this afternoon. Hundreds of citizens watched the odd plane as it circled the city and then soared toward the aerodrome.

It was expected to leave for Regina late this afternoon.

THIRTY CENTS ALBERTA POOL WHEAT PRICE

Canadian Press
Calgary, July 13.—The Alberta Wheat Pool will make an initial payment of thirty cents a bushel, basis No. 1 Northern at Vancouver, on deliveries from the 1931 crop, according to an announcement to-day by R. D. Purdy, general manager of the pool.

July 15 has been set as cut-off date for the 1930-31 pool, and subsequent deliveries will be taken on the thirty-cent initial payment basis, this price being subject to revision later due to the general market situation.

First deliveries of last year's crop were paid for at a rate of sixty cents a bushel, as an initial payment, subsequent reductions carrying this down to fifty-five and later fifty cents a bushel. The course grain pool, which suspended operations last season, will not be operative this year.

Brynjolfson is the present British Columbia amateur champion, while Morrison was runner-up.

ROBBINS-JONES PLANE PASSES OVER QUESNEL

Quesnel, B.C., July 13.—The Robbins-Jones plane Fort Worth, en route from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Seattle, passed over here at 12:56 p.m., some 100 miles north of its destination.

Before leaving Fairbanks Reg. L. Robbins said a second attempt to reach Tokyo probably would be made within a week.

COMMONS ASKED TO INCREASE PENALTIES FOR NUDE PARADES

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 13.—More stringent provisions to curb nude parades are included in a bill amending the Criminal Code, which was introduced in the Commons this afternoon by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, and given first reading. Such parades (by Sons of Freedom Doukhobors) had been giving considerable trouble in western Canada. Mr. Guthrie said, and he was asking the House to raise the penalty to a maximum of three years.

Increased penalties also provided in the amendments for chicken stealing and for sending false alarms into fire departments. A prohibition is made

After a three-hour preliminary hearing in City Police Court this morning, Ronald Cyril Cameron Stewart, unemployed speaker here, was committed for trial on a charge of endeavoring to incite to mutiny members of His Majesty's forces.

The charge against Stewart is based on alleged circulation of a pamphlet addressed "To All Soldiers and Sailors," urging them to "refuse to shoot hungry workers."

The courtroom was crowded for the hearing, the audience being composed mostly of unemployed, including several women.

Evidence showed the pamphlets in question had been distributed to soldiers at Work Point Barracks and to sailors at the naval barracks as well as posted on telephone poles in the vicinity. That Stewart was working to enlist members of the militia in the Communist party was also testified.

Stewart was himself a member of the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry from last October until March of this year and had himself discharged by getting one of the men to write an anonymous letter to the commanding officer accusing Stewart of Communism. Subsequent investigation by the authorities resulted in his discharge.

Magistrate George Jay was on the bench for the hearing. A. M. Johnson, K.C., represented the prosecution and P. J. Bennett appeared for the defence.

MADE ARREST
Inspector Frederick J. Mead, of the R.C.M.P. at Vancouver, testified regarding the arrest of Stewart last Monday morning at the Workers' Alliance Hall, 1415 Broad Street. With several other men, Stewart was found, he said, in a room adjacent to the hall, apparently serving the purpose of a combined office and bedroom.

Search of Stewart revealed a membership card in the Communist Party of Canada; a pamphlet of regulations for new members and a pamphlet with a picture of Lenin, as well as a number of other documents, including correspondence between the accused and the Workers' Alliance and the Communist Party of Canada, and several pamphlets headed, "The Workers' Voice."

The membership card in the Communist Party and the pamphlet of regulations were put in as exhibits.

Cross-examined by Mr. Bennett, witness said the Broad Street hall was apparently used as sleeping quarters by some of the unemployed. He saw about seven beds there.

MIMOGRAPH PURCHASED
J. W. Montgomery, 3115 Steele Street, typewriter salesman for the B.C. Office Equipment Company, testified that Stewart had rented a typewriter from the firm. It was delivered, he said, to an address on Mears Street.

Witness also said Stewart had purchased from him a $125 mimograph machine with stenographic and additional equipment, which was sent to the hall at 1415 Broad Street. Stewart entered into a sales agreement to buy this on terms.

Publication of false advertisements is provided against, with protection to newspapers or periodicals which publish such advertisements not knowing them to be false.

Use of counterfeit seals on liquor packages is made the subject of a special penalty on representations by provincial liquor control boards. Selling goods falsely marked is the subject of another amendment.

Some revision of the code is to be made in connection with appeals to the Supreme Court and the granting of bail.

London, July 13.—Australia is prepared to make full advantage of the trade treaty with Canada, the details of which are expected to be released this evening by the Prime Ministers of Australia and Canada in their respective parliaments.

Arthur E. Hyland, director of publicity for the Commonwealth government in London, will sail for Canada July 29. He intends to spend three months in the Dominion, giving particular attention to the Canadian market for Australian wines, butter and dried fruits.

He also expects to make valuable contacts with Canadian manufacturers with a view to stimulating Canadian exports to Australia.

Zionists' Vote Scores Weizmann

Basel, Switzerland, July 13.—The fight between the supporters of Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, and his opponents reached a climax yesterday evening when the Zionist Congress adopted by a vote of 123 to 105 a resolution submitted by the political commission which in effect amounted to a vote of no confidence in Dr. Weizmann.

The resolution declared that "the congress expresses regret at the views expressed by Dr. Weizmann in his interview with the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, and regards his reply to the interpretation on his interview as inadequate."

In his interview on July 3 Dr. Weizmann said he had no sympathy with the demand for a Jewish majority in Palestine because the world would construe that demand only to mean the Jews wanted to acquire a majority in order to drive out the Arabs.

SEVEN INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Borden, Sask., July 13.—Marring the big Orange celebration here Saturday, a collision between two motor cars caused injuries to seven persons, one of whom is in a serious condition. The victims were taken to a local nursing home, where Mrs. William Newsham Sr., aged seventy-eight, of Great Deer, twenty miles north of Borden, was reported as the most seriously hurt.

The aged woman suffered from severe shock, with possibility of internal injuries.

Others injured were Mr. and Mrs. William Newsham Jr. and their young son, A. J. McDonald, of Calmar, Alta., his mother and sister. With the exception of the boy, who sustained a deep scalp wound, all received minor cuts caused by broken glass.

The large sedan of the McDonalds, who were driving to Ontario, ran into the side of the Newsham car, a light coupe, which was torn from its chassis and wrecked.

REVENUE INCREASES

Montreal, July 13.—A dispatch from Quebec City published in The Montreal Gazette today said an increase of over $700,000 in revenue from the gasoline tax will be reported in the province's financial statement for the fiscal year 1930-31. Two years ago the revenue from the tax was $3,500,000, last year it reached $4,000,000, and this year will reach $4,700,000, according to the dispatch.

Things Are Growing

At this season, when the average gardener is taking his ease, apart from the job of watering, things are being grown at Rockhome for next autumn—young shrubs, little conifers, shade trees, choice perennials like delphiniums, new roses, climbers and rock plants, which, a few weeks ago, were seeds on some distant mountain. Perhaps you would like to see them now, when many are in bloom. Certainly you'll want some for your own garden when planting time comes.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE IS UNIONS' PLAN

Vancouver Workers Urged Delegation Be Sent to Ot- tawa By Labor Congress

Canadian Press
Vancouver, July 13.—Immediate provision of unemployment insurance, and union wages for all relief works, were demanded in resolutions passed yesterday evening by 300 leaders of trade unionism in Vancouver at an extraordinary meeting held in the Labor Temple under the auspices of the Vancouver, New Westminster and District Trades and Labor Council.

The meeting was attended by regular delegates to the Trades and Labor Council and executive officers of the seventy-two local unions affiliated with the council, representing 15,000 organized workers in Vancouver and district.

Other resolutions passed called for the right of free speech without permit, opposed any reduction of wages and demanded Japanese residents of Vancouver be given equal rights with Occidentals when applying for city relief.

DELEGATION TO OTTAWA

It was voted to urge the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to send a strong delegation to Ottawa to interview the members of the cabinet and press for passage of state unemployment insurance legislation at the present session of Parliament.

Although no definite rate of insurance was stipulated in the resolution, the executive was instructed to press for an adequate weekly allowance.

The sum of $15 a week for single unemployed and $25 a week for married men was suggested by one delegate and strongly endorsed by the entire meeting.

Representations regarding relief work will be made to federal, provincial and municipal governments, according to the resolution on this point. In demanding union wages on all public works, the resolution also asked that weekly wage rates be adequate to support the recipient on "a decent Canadian standard."

POSITION OF JAPANESE

Delegates of a Japanese trade union informed the meeting members of their local had applied to the city relief department for relief and had been refused even the privilege of registering. The secretary of the local, they said, had been definitely refused the privilege of registering on June 30, and the same thing had happened when application was made to the Dominion Unemployment Bureau.

The meeting went on record as demanding Japanese citizens should have equal rights to relief.

USE OF PARKS

The city council came in for criticism from delegates who objected to the city ordinance refusing to allow public meetings in city parks unless permits were first granted.

"It is not free speech so long as you have to get a permit first," one delegate declared. Other delegates thought, however, that permits were necessary in order to avoid confusion that might arise should several organizations decide to hold meetings at a single place at the same time.

INDEPENDENT DEMAND

Discussion of the various resolutions lasted three hours, but without any serious division of opinion. Delegates who were also members of the ILP voiced some opposition to unem- ployment insurance, declaring aboli- tion of unemployment should be labor's rallying cry, and demanded a resolution calling for nationalization of resources and industry.

Several delegates expressed misgivings as to the effect the various resolutions would have on the authorities to which they were directed, and asked how the Labor Council would act if its demands were ignored.

"They are talking about organizing labor battalions, on military lines," one delegate stated. "There is your means of enforcing your demands. Let the workers enrolled in the battalions do as the Russian soldiers did in the revolution—depose their appointed officers and elect their own."

It was decided to continue the practice of holding special meetings of delegates and local executives whenever the need arose.

Canadian Butter Holdings Decrease

Canadian Press
Ottawa, July 13.—Decrease in stocks of creamery butter in cold storage in the Dominion is noted in a statement by the Department of Trade and Commerce. There were 20,600,223 pounds in storage on July 1, as compared with 22,205,520 in July 1 last year, the report states.

Dairy butter stocks on hand amounted to 266,654 pounds on hand, as against 616,808 a year ago. Stocks of cold storage eggs were slightly lower, with 13,879,114 dozen in the warehouses as against 14,730,159 dozen for the same month of 1930. Fresh and frozen eggs, however, showed an increase, the respective figures being 588,826 and 5,533,093 dozen for 1931, and 746,249 and 4,287,731 for July 1, 1930.

The Victoria Horticultural Society

By JOHN HUTCHISON, F.R.H.S.

The annual flower show of the Victoria Horticultural Society will take place in the Chamber of Commerce on July 31 and August 1 next, and every citizen of Victoria and district should make a point of visiting it at least once.

With no ostentation the Victoria Horticultural Society has for years past been doing a great work for the city of Victoria and the district. Every month, on the first Tuesday, it holds a meeting in the City Hall and nearly always it supplies a lecture by some expert on one of the many phases of gardening. One month it will be a government insect-pest expert. Another time it will be a lecture on tree pruning by some qualified person. Again it will be a talk on roses, rock plants, perennials, vegetables or what-not, but always something that will be found instructive and interesting to every gardener.

Garden competitions are held every year and keen rivalry is shown by the competitors. These garden competitions have done a great deal to stimulate interest in gardening in the district.

The society issues a bulletin every month, giving hints on work that should be done in the garden, how to do it and when to do it.

Every summer a flower show is held where some of the finest flowers, fruits and vegetables grown on the island are exhibited. This year the summer flower show should be particularly good as it comes at a time when a very large number of garden flowers will be at their best.

The Victoria Horticultural Society is a most democratic institution. All who are able to keep up large gardens and those who have only a small city lot in which to grow their plants, and the professional gardener meet the keen amateur in equal terms. Free discussion is encouraged for all with the result that many interesting and useful subjects are talked over.

B.C. BULBS AND SEEDS

Some few weeks ago the writer had something to say by way of praise for the Victoria Horticultural Society, and plants and it so happened that he also mentioned the fact that British Columbia made jam was as good or better than any in the world. This called forth some very good-natured criticism from a correspondent who pointed out that one jam factory in British Columbia had not kept up the quality of its product and had been forced out of business, and he seemed to think that our bulbs, seeds and plants were in danger in the same direction.

The writer has pointed out several times that quality is the keystone of all our horticultural endeavors in this country. We cannot, and don't want to compete with the cheap labor of Europe, but we can and do compete when quality is taken into consideration. This quality must be kept up at all costs in every line. Our bulbs must be better than the imported Article, our seeds must be better, our plants must be better because if they are not, people overseas and in eastern Canada will not pay the slightly higher price which we have to demand.

In so far as the seed industry is concerned, it has already proved itself to this extent, that there is hardly a large seed house in England which is not importing British Columbia - grown seed to a greater or lesser extent. The hard-headed English business man does not pay more money for an article unless it is better than that which he can buy at a cheaper rate.

The bulb industry has not as yet gone quite so far, mainly because there have not been sufficient bulbs grown in the country to supply local demands. This matter will, however, right itself as good become larger. A very large number of cut flowers, gladioli, bulbous iris, tulips, gladioli and others are being shipped as far east as Winnipeg and this is becoming year by year a greater branch of the industry.

What the writer wanted particularly to point out was the fact that at the meetings of the Victoria Horticultural Society one may run across growers of seeds, bulbs and plants and one may learn from them in conversation what it might take months to learn in any other way. One finds that the real horticulturist is always willing and glad to give the beginner any help he can by quoting his own experience, which have probably cost many dollars.

If one is interested in horticulture in any form, either for business or pleasure, one should join the Victoria Horticultural Society. Even if one is not personally interested, except as a lover of flowers, one should join to help out a good cause. Finally everyone should join because this society is one of the best advertising mediums that this city has and, by the way, it only costs a dollar a year.

MR. RAMSAY MACDONALD, MR. STANLEY Baldwin, Mr. Lloyd George and Field Marshal Sir William Robertson stood on the same platform in the Albert Hall in London last Saturday and dedicated the country to the task of persuading the nations at the Disarmament Conference next February to reduce "the enormous and disgraceful burden of arms." The great auditorium was packed and an overflow meeting in nearby Hyde Park gave another 10,000 people an opportunity of joining in the common cause espoused by the Prime Minister, two former Premiers, and a great soldier. Seventy meetings up and down the country, held simultaneously, imparted the nation-wide significance to this impressive demonstration by the people of Great Britain.

The Albert Hall gathering, of course, is fresh evidence that the policy of disarmament which the MacDonald government has adopted meets with the complete approval of both Conservative and Liberal leaders, and that any change of administration would not affect Britain's determination to lead the way and convince the rest of the world that in disarmament lies the key to permanent peace. Nor is there anything surprising in this unanimity of view as far as the three political parties of Britain are concerned. Their leaders understand perfectly well that the overburdened taxpayers will tolerate no government in the future that does not continue to reduce the annual expenditure on arms.

SALUTE THE J.B.A.A.

THE STALWART YOUNG OARSMEN of the J.B.A.A. covered themselves with glory at the regatta of the North Pacific Association of Amateur Oarsmen at Burnaby Lake on Friday and Saturday, and brought distinction to Victoria in a manner worthy of the best traditions of this famous old institution dedicated to clean sport. They won five important events, chief of which was the senior four race which gave to them the historic Buchanan Cup, probably the largest trophy of its kind in the world.

It is no disparagement to the winners of the other events to say that even if no other race had been won by the J.B.A.A. oarsmen, apart from the senior fours, Victoria sportsmen would have been abundantly satisfied, and Dan O'Sullivan, the veteran coach, who is not too easily pleased, would have admitted that the club had done exceedingly well. For the senior four event for nearly forty years has been the very crux of these annual regattas of the N.P.A.A.O., and upon the capture of the magnificent perpetual challenge offered for it the various competing clubs have concentrated their attention.

During this long period the Buchanan Cup has had its home in Portland, Vancouver and Victoria. Several years ago it was won by the striplings of Brentwood College to their everlasting distinction, and from the interest these boys are taking in aquatic sports it is safe to predict some day it again will be found in the school on Todd Inlet. Last year it went to Vancouver, and now it returns to its original home. The celebrated "Big Four" of the halcyon days when Dan O'Sullivan himself was stroke, won the cup four or five times successively, and the old J.B.A.A. headquarters looked like its permanent home.

The young men of the J.B.A.A., however, were not satisfied with even this inevitable achievement at Burnaby Lake. They also won the senior fours, senior and junior doubles and 1400-pound fours. As they had a wide range of competition, contributed by Portland, Vancouver, Kelowna and Brentwood, their achievement was nothing short of a triumph. It was significant of many things, not the least of which was the proof it presented that the youth of Victoria is just as much of a factor to be reckoned with in the realm of sport as it ever was in the history of the city. To win these five events on Saturday the J.B.A.A. oarsmen devoted much of their spare time to careful training, and this, in itself, speaks volumes for their enthusiasm for the best interests of sport.

The James Bay Athletic Association, which is one of the oldest organizations of its kind on the Pacific Coast, and was instituted when most of that part of Victoria south of Belleville Street was known as James Bay, is a useful asset of this city. Not only in aquatic sports, but in numerous other fields of amateur athletics, it has creditably maintained the prestige of Victoria and, what is more important, by exemplifying what is best in amateur sportsmanship it has exercised an inestimable influence upon the citizenship of this country. Over more than four decades its membership has been associated intimately with the life of the community in many aspects, for most of Victoria's leaders have been on its roll. It, therefore, is gratifying to note such evidence of its enterprise, vigor, skill and enthusiasm as was presented at the N.P.A.A.O. regatta on Friday and Saturday.

ANOTHER DEAN AND RUSSIA

IN AN OLD COUNTRY WEEKLY just to hand appears the picture of Dr. Hewlett Johnson, formerly Dean of Manchester and now Dean of Canterbury, and comments on an announcement that he had consented to take the chair at the opening of a garden party to be held under the auspices of "the Society for Cultural Relations between the Peoples of the British Commonwealth and the Union of Soviet Republics." We are told that people who had seen the posters and other literature advertising the event wondered why a leading English Churchman should associate himself with anything connected with the present regime in Russia, "where the greatest campaign history has ever known is ruthlessly being waged against Christianity."

The Daily Mail sent a representative to interview Dr. Johnson to get a first-hand explanation of his association with the event in question. Here it is:

The society is not in any sense a political organization, and it has no connection whatever with any anti-Christian movement in Russia. Its object is to bring the artistic people of England into touch with the artistic people in Russia. It provides a form of approach between people of kindred ideas.

Naturally I am entirely opposed to any anti-Christian teaching, but I feel that it would make matters worse if all relations were broken off between the two countries.

I hold no brief for the Soviet system. As for the Christians in Russia, the worst service we could do them is to cut off all relationship. The Russians need to be shown a new type of Christianity—a form of Christianity with which they have not before been familiar.

Two years ago Dr. Johnson wanted to visit Russia, but he was refused permission to enter the country. Evidently he, like others of his rank in the Anglican Church, not only desires to know the truth about Russia, but also recognizes that it is foolish to ignore the existence of 160,000,000 people, especially those whose spiritual outlook will not be changed by the devil's campaign.

FRANCE'S TERMS

SUSPENSION OF THE PROGRAMME for building "vest pocket" battleships, abandonment of the proposed customs union with Austria, further credit restrictions, inauguration of measures to prevent the flight of capital, creation of a "Locarno of the East," or, in other words, formal relinquishment for all time of any hope of regaining Danzig and the Danzig Corridor—these are reported to be some of the conditions Germany would have to accept before France would assist in a loan to help her out of her present serious financial dilemma.

There are 64,000,000 intensely patriotic Germans in Germany and their pride is just as natural as the pride of the people of any other nation. The German people have had to swallow a good deal of their pride in the last few years; and it was right and proper that they were made to eat humble pie until they had got it into their heads that there is no room in the world for the policy of might. Militarism and the war spirit, to all intents and purposes, are dead in Germany to-day. But there is obviously a limit to which that country will permit herself to be pushed, in spite of the fact that she is in a sorry financial plight. France has presented an ultimatum, if the report in regard to loan conditions is true, which could not be accepted any more than Serbia could accept the ultimatum which the military chiefs at Berlin and Vienna concocted in 1914.

France must not be surprised if harsh things are said about her. Her behavior since the moratorium offer of President Hoover was made has caused considerable misgivings. She continues to be ungracious without adequate cause. We get an impartial view of the modern France and her military and financial condition from some observations Mr. Adolph Ochs, president and publisher of The New York Times, made on his return from Europe the other day. He reminded the public that France now has the largest standing army in the world and the best of modern military equipment. She is in an impregnable financial position; with eighty per cent of her currency protected by a gold accumulation, with United States bonds in hand sufficient to pay the United States annuities for several years, and with billions of foreign exchange credit, principally in the United States and England. "It seems to be the policy of France to take care of herself," Mr. Ochs proceeds, "if she can not be assured by England and the United States of security from aggression. All this is causing doubt and suspicion toward France, and creating some ill-will throughout the world that is becoming quite articulate and disturbing to the sincere friends of France in other countries."

France may think she can take care of herself; but if she remains the stumbling block in the way of Germany's financial recovery, sooner or later she may be confronted with a combination of British-United States-Italian interests that will not permit Germany to be wrecked and the country left the prey of Hitlerites or Communists, a transformation from the effects of which France, with all her preparedness, would be unable to escape eventually. The picture is not a pleasant one and the next twenty-four hours will be anxious ones in many capitals in Europe, as, indeed, throughout the world.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

LIVING WITHIN OUR MEANS
 The Bay Roberts Guardian

There are some people who claim that Newfoundland is able to stand a debt of $200,000,000. So far as its resources are concerned this may be perfectly true, but how are 250,000 people going to be able to pay the interest on this loan and at the same time pay for all their public services? The question of raising enough money to pay the interest, etc., is paramount. Therefore loans under present conditions must stop, and we must be compelled later if not now, to live within our current income. As long as we can get into the money markets and float loans from year to year so long will we be tempted to put off our national house-cleaning, which is now a long time overdue.

THE FRENCH AND THE HOOVER PLAN
 The Baltimore Sun

The French do not wish to give up the approximate hundred million dollars they would get in the next repatriation year from the so-called "unconditional" part of Germany's payments. More important to the French is the protection, if possible, of the integrity of the Young Plan. Not that the French really believe the Young Plan will live its self-allotted span of nearly three more years. Intelligent Frenchmen cannot believe any more than do intelligent Englishmen or Americans that our great-grandchildren will be receiving payments each year from the great-grandchildren of middle-aged Germany because of a war started when we were scarcely more than children. Intelligent Frenchmen do not really believe that. But they are out for the Young Plan, especially the "unconditional" payments they get from it, going as long as is humanly possible.

A THOUGHT

Shall the axe boast itself against him that heweth therewith? or shall the saw magnify itself against him that shaketh it? as if the rod should shake itself against them that lift it up, or as if the staff should lift up itself, as if it were no wood.—Isaiah x. 15.

Loose Ends

Mr. Gandhi explains why he doesn't wear trousers—but we continue to ignore his advice—despite our discomfort—but the little girl next door displays good sense.

By H. B. W.

MR. MAHANDAS KARAMCHAND Gandhi, of India, has lately explained why he refuses to wear any clothes to speak of. He said he used to wear clothes but soon discovered that the poor people of India couldn't afford even a loin cloth of adequate size. "I saw," he explained, "that when my clothing utilized only a partial truth of the poverty of India, these millions, compulsorily naked save for their narrow loin cloths, gave through their bare limbs the starkest truth. What effective answer could I give them unless I, too, divested myself of every bit of clothing with which I could conceivably disguise, and put myself to a still greater extent in harmony with the ill-clad masses?" Therefore, Mr. Gandhi will take his loin cloth to London and, if he is invited, will still wear it before the King.

I AM NOT afraid that this idea will spread to the western world. I do not anticipate that Premier Bennett will take to wearing patched overalls to put himself into better harmony with the impoverished prairie farmers, although I see that his minister of labor did the next best thing and made a speech about them. I do not anticipate our statesmen will do anything so intriguing and it is probably just as well because they are not built for it. Nevertheless, Mr. Gandhi's plan is interesting. It is interesting because, however we may dislike it, however absurd it may appear to us, this little brown man who looks like a spider, is getting away with it. He is getting away not only with his nakedness but with just about everything else he wants as well. And the contemplation of this amazing phenomenon should be good for our arrogant western souls.

IN A WAY we should be grateful to Mr. Gandhi, whatever we may think of him. We should be grateful, I mean, to see that the mysterious force of personality which has invariably controlled history, still survives somewhere in this cold, impersonal age. In the western world, where we produce machines of unequalled power, we don't seem to have the power of the black shrike. Mr. Stalin has to shoot Russians who don't like him. Mr. Hoover can't even control the Republican party. Mr. MacDonald is teetering on the verge of defeat every day. It is rather distressing but, I repeat, it is good for our souls, to realize that a few centuries from now brown-skinned Mr. Gandhi may be better known and more talked about in history books than any man of our white race in this generation.

NEW POLITICAL parties in British Columbia should remember the lesson of Mr. Gandhi—the lesson that no matter how just a cause, how perfect an organization, you can't get far without a personality at the head of it. In the end most people vote for men rather than causes, and political issues, in the public mind, usually become a contest between two individuals. If you have the wrong individual at the head of your party you are usually the loser. The man who deserves you may be Mr. X, as I understand, is proposed by one new party, you have no one in particular at all, but rely on abstract proposals and the good sense of the electors, you can't get anywhere. Our western heroes these days are not so intriguing as far as they are ordinary men who wear pants and neck ties, but the old instinct is still with us, and we still worship them. It is so much simpler than thinking for ourselves and finding out what it is all about.

ON THE STREETS of Victoria in the recent hot days you could see convincing proof of my frequent contention that the system of doing things is upside down and back to front. The male members of the race are bundled up in hot clothes, they suffer and perspire in great agony. They are too stupid even to dress themselves comfortably and yet, under our system, they are the ones who are to be the public. If you care to go across the Causeway, you will find the perfection of this stupidity, for in the Parliament Buildings the men actively in control of affairs, the cabinet ministers, are more bundled up in dark, heat-absorbing clothes than anyone.

THE WOMEN, on the other hand (who really have little influence on public affairs except in an agreeable abstract sense), display much better judgment. They are dressed in cool summer dresses, with short sleeves, low necks, short skirts and, one supposes, precious little else. Finally we come to the children, who have no voice in public affairs at all. And behold, they are more intelligent than any of us. They alone are reasonably dressed with just enough clothes and sometimes not quite enough) to be decent. If the object of government and of civilization is the pursuit of happiness, I submit that comfortable dress is a supremely fair test of intelligence; for if a man can't preserve his own comfort, why should he be expected to preserve the comfort of the public at large? And by this test you find inevitably that the most incompetent are given the positions of greatest trust. We haven't a man in all Canada sensible enough to keep cool like Mr. Gandhi.

FOR MORE intelligent than our best statesman is the little girl from next door, as you would agree if you could see her at this particular moment.

BURN KIRK'S COAL

"DOES LAST LONGER"

The little girl from next door has just come over to see me, clad as usual in her simple dress. She has on a complete costume, consisting of one pair of light blue pants, held up by two strips of cloth over her shoulders, a coat of brown tan on all visible parts of her body, and a pair of shoes. She is running madly to and fro in the spray, rolling on the wet grass, turning somersaults and shouting with cool delight while the rest of us sweeter in the heat. She emerges from the shade, drenched and lies in the sun for a few moments to get warm, and then she dashes back into the spray.

MEANWHILE her little brother, newly arrived from the hospital, is sleeping in his pram in the shade not far off. He is wearing a pair of feeble cry. Listening to him very solemnly, the little girl says: "Baby, he wishes he was with me in the water, that's what." After she is quite cooled off, the little girl has her afternoon tea as usual, and has developed a remarkable appetite for it. Her afternoon tea consists of a cup of milk and a raw carrot. "I'm having a big party," she says, contentedly gnawing her carrot and adds, as she listens to her young brother wail: "Baby, he wants to be in my party and eat carrots, too." The mother's management of grown-up people, brother is not allowed in the party at all.

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES
 JULY 13, 1906

(From The Times Files)
 The Victoria Development and Tourist Association is appealing to all classes of citizens for contributions and donations to defray the cost of the work to the end of the current year. In consequence of the large amount of labor necessary in connection with the amalgamation of the old association and the new 100,000 club the very essential matter of raising money has been rather neglected, but now that the association has got down to regular work, the acquisition of funds becomes very necessary.

Chairman Shurebury of the Seattle Commission, is in the city for the purpose of interviewing Mayor Morley in regard to the possibility of effecting an exchange of some of the many different varieties included in the wild stock at Woodland Park for a number of the same kind of animals from the features of the Bescon Hill recreation grounds.

A large Icelandic colony will shortly be located on one of the islands at the mouth of the Skeena River. The exact location has not yet been chosen and the name of the island is, by request, withheld for obvious reasons.

Weather Forecast: Victoria and vicinity, light moderate winds, continued fair and warm to-day and Saturday.

The Petrel, the new tug built by the Victoria Machinery Depot for the Dominion Government, made her trial trip yesterday afternoon. She is a fine specimen of the modern tug, and the stowage requirements exacted by the inspectors.

"CITY BEAUTY"

To the Editor:—Referring to Fred B. Pemberton's useful schemes to beautify our city, let me add that the first and obvious thing is to remove the hideous hoardings which hide so much of the natural charm of beautiful Victoria. This beauty is public property, and no one should be allowed to use it for private commercial profit. Oak Bay municipality wisely does not allow them to mar its natural attraction, but visitors coming to Victoria wonder that any city in this respect. Hoardings have been forbidden in some of the states to the south of us, and many persons have determined to do the same. Not to buy goods thus advertised, in addition to their unsightliness, the paper from them, when being scraped off, adds much to the litter of our streets. Also, the dumping of rubbish on vacant lots.

EDUCATION AND PATRIOTISM

To the Editor:—The recent decision to insert what is called "The Canadian Creed and Pledge" in all school readers in British Columbia, has led to something of a "patriotic" craze. It is a realist. There are some who declare that his characters are caricatures. But every unprejudiced critic must admit that "The Canadian Creed and Pledge" is a perfect expression of the view of life which gave distinguishing traits to the people of "Main Street" in the United States. In comparison, consider "The Pledge to the Flag" which is printed in readers in the United States: "I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States, and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." It has dignity and simplicity. But it is conceivable that a "Babbitt" might feel that it is foolishly sentimental and that it lacks the business-getting punch of a booster's slogan.

"The Canadian Creed and Pledge" is frankly materialistic. It ignores both flag and empire, and it has no thought of Liberty of Justice. After a humdrum beginning it rises gradually to the most fervid expression of patriotism that a demagogue can venture in these times.

In the pledge: "To her products I pledge my patronage. And to the cause of her producers I pledge my devotion." The children of British Columbia are to learn that patriotism has ceased to be a thing of ideas and that it has become strictly practical in thoughts of canned salmon and loganberry jam. Doubtless in time those pictures of historical subjects which have been placed in our schools by the T.O.D.E. and other organizations will be replaced by our heroes and their products of billboard advertisements of pickles, lumber, pickled oil and other local products. Teachers will be instructed that the minds of children are never to be permitted to stray into the realms of romance and sacrifice in temporary forgetfulness of this treasured banality of our mediocre politicians, entitled: "The Canadian Creed and Pledge."

THE DEAN'S LECTURE
 To the Editor:—As one who was actually at the Memorial Hall on June 29, and heard the Dean, I write in appreciation of your very fine editorial in to-night's Times on "The Dean's Lecture." It is just exactly what was needed to be said.

The controversy which has waged round the Dean's summary of a book on Russia has brought out very forcibly: (1) the power of the press, (2) the influence of the public, (3) that there are still people who jump at conclusions, and (4), the apparent lack of desire on the part of many people to think.

It was nice of "H.B.W." to recommend all these interesting books, too, but the average person will not read them. Someone brave enough, like the Dean, to summarize at least a few of them!

For many years he has been president of the London and Provincial Anti-Vivisection Society and only resigned recently on account of his inability to do justice to the cause which he had so deeply at heart. His place was taken by the Marchioness of Ely.

Both the Earl and Countess of Tankerville have also long been vice-presidents of the British Union for the Abolition of Vivisection, the president of which is W. R. Hudson, J.P., M.D., and their mutual interest in the cause has never flagged. They have presided at meetings and addressed vast audiences in London and elsewhere, making the long journey to Chillingworth for this special purpose.

Reforms are brought about by the persistent efforts and unflinching sympathy of individuals, no matter what place in life they occupy, and when they pass away their works will follow them and others will rise up to take their place. While deeply regretting the passing of this loyal supporter of the anti-vivisection movement, there is every cause to be grateful for the example he has left us. One of his most recent letters to the press, published a few months ago in shocked criticism of the Bishop of Durham's views on vivisection, the experimental torture of animals being a matter upon which, in the realm of ethics and morals, there can be no compromise.

"It will make hard the heart of the nation, and when you have the heart of the nation hardened to the extent that vivisection will harden it, a Nemesis such as has overtaken other civilizations in the past is already on the way, and you may be prepared for any moral catastrophe that you can possibly imagine."

If a country is disgraced by vivisection, it is in the power of the people to remove that blot.

THE DEAN'S LECTURE

To the Editor:—Bravo! and congratulations on your sportsmanship and journalistic enterprise in giving the people of British Columbia an opportunity of judging the Dean's lecture for themselves. I venture to say that it is one of the clearest "recoils" in the history of the Victoria press, and a timely act of justice, fairness and decency.

Distorted though it was in the journey from the Memorial Hall to Broad Street, the lecture of Monday had become the sermon of Sunday by the time it got to Vancouver; and what it will be when it gets to Toronto—well, the very thought makes one feel sick. I mention this to show that a wrong impression was created by your elderly contemporary that even the long overdue apology will not correct. "The Old Lady of Broad Street" needs to be reminded that "easy is the descent to perdition, while to climb back is another matter," even when fortified by a volume of Pearsall's memoirs.

No one wishes to believe that a Victoria daily paper would knowingly adopt the tactics of the "yellow" type of newspaper, and we have reason to congratulate ourselves upon being free from the luridities, in the past, of that species of the journalistic art which served up to its readers a new victim every day. The fault is rather that, in an effort to do a public man justice, the newspaper overdoes its praise of Caesar, and covers him with lavish adulation just as a certain species of reptile coats its victim with saliva as an aid to swallowing it.

Now we await the "amende honorable" on the part of The Colonist, a course rendered easier by the splendid generosity displayed towards the erring editor of the offending editorial by The Times editorial—and British fair-play demands that The Colonist should do the decent thing before it is too late. And even The London Times was taken in by a clever forger years ago, just as the morning paper has palpably had something "padded" in the past, and should never have been allowed to see the composing-room.

In justice to the many who have been misled, as I have been, I have, as shown by letters to the press, and in fairness to one of the leading citizens of this fair city, namely, the Dean himself, the people of the Province are entitled to an act of reparation on the part of The Colonist.

In the meantime, The Times deserves all praise and commendation for a clean act, and one dictated by the highest of motives. Again, sir, thank you.

MERLEIGH SMITH.

"LEGION ACTION CONDEMNED"

To the Editor:—The Colonist of May 27 contained an article under the caption "Legion Action Is Condemned," which read as follows:

"Members of the recently-organized Non-Pensioners' Welfare Association, at their meeting last night, condemned the action of the provincial command of the Canadian Legion, at present in convention at New Westminster, in passing a resolution protesting against the use of Shaughnessy Military Hospital at Vancouver for sick mariners, and asking that the institution be used for ex-service men only."

As, up to this date, no steps have been taken by the non-pensioners' Association to remedy the harm which their article and the publicity which they have given to it have done, I have been instructed to write in our own defence and place the facts before the veterans and public of Victoria.

Shaughnessy Hospital, maintained by the federal government for the care and treatment of ex-service men and women, and members of the permanent force. Accommodation is limited, and last winter huts built for vocational students were pressed into service as hospital wards. Each year the number of veteran patients is increasing and something will have to be done to provide for their proper care.

Increase of scope, but not of facilities, of an institution which could not adequately meet the requirements of its previously-restricted service, can lead only to greater inconvenience and suffering among our sick comrades. Therefore, we are fully justified in protesting against the government's action in this matter.

Sick mariners need medical care and treatment, and the Seamen's and Firemen's Union are pressing the government to build special hospitals in Vancouver and eastern Canada with a part of the large sum which stands to the credit of the Sick Mariners' Fund.

Such funds are created by compulsory contributions varying according to vessel's tonnage.

But, apparently, the government intends to practice economy until it hurts the sick veteran. One mariner, a Chinaman, was placed in a ward with veteran patients; he was a super-type of Oriental, but his presence was not welcome. No separate wards are reserved for mariners, consequently these patients, irrespective of nationality, are mixed with veterans.

If there were no other place for these mariners to be sent to, veterans would raise no objection on the point of color, nor would they protest against overcrowding or other inconveniences. But while general hospitals are available, and while the government holds a fund sufficiently large to provide special hospitals for mariners, the Canadian Legion will protest against the Shaughnessy Hospital being used for seamen of all nationalities to the disadvantage of veterans who have a definite claim on the government.

In this connection it is worthy of note that the provincial government have built a large and expensive ad-

DEBT DELAYS DOT HISTORY

Many Nations, United States
Included, Have Suspended
Payments

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington, July 10.—The world is going through a new experience as it prepares for an international moratorium, wrestles with the two-headed monster of war debts and war indebtedness.

Yet it is not entirely a new experience after all. Few things are.

KING LOUIS XVI.
An Ax Canceled United States
Debt to Him.

Just such crises on a tiny scale dot pre-war history in profusion.

The unprecedented phase of the present situation is that which finds a great system of inter-governmental payments all based on indemnity charges against a single nation, and affecting the world's economic health to an extent where it is believed essential to suspend all payments for at least a year.

Government economists prefer to call the Hoover proposal a "suspension," but it will continue to be known as a moratorium just the same. A moratorium is a temporary, emergency measure invoked by governments so that debtors may legally postpone payments due for a certain period. It is President Hoover's idea, in this case, that interest as well as payments on principal of inter-governmental obligations should be suspended for a year so that both reparations and debt payments will be concluded a year later than provided by the present arrangements.

FRANCE HAS USED PLAN

France declared several moratoriums during the Franco-Prussian war of 1871 and at the outbreak of the World War in 1914 the warring governments and some neutrals invoked them, sometimes for months, in order to avoid bankruptcies from sudden liquidations and financial upsets.
Lately there have been proposals for moratoriums on farm mortgages in some Canadian provinces. The effect of a moratorium can be produced in this country by declaring a series of legal holidays, as the governor of California did after the San Francisco earthquake and fire. As debts are not payable on legal holidays, the power to declare enough legal holidays amounts to the same thing as power to declare a moratorium.

PRUSSIA SET STYLE IN INDENITIES

Indemnities and reparations in money, territory or both are as ancient as war and have long been recognized by international law. In modern history Prussia set a new standard when in her wars of 1866 and 1870 she demanded three times as much as all other nations had demanded after all other wars between 1793 and 1871.
France excited world admiration by speedily paying off her $1,000,000,000 indemnity, then regarded as a staggering sum. The peace treaty was signed in May, 1871, and the last payment made months ahead of time in September, 1873.

France borrowed nearly all the money—it did not come from the people's hand as is so often told. She issued two large loans, totalling more than $1,000,000,000, sold many of the bonds in Germany, persuaded her people to sell their foreign bonds and buy those of France. Foreigners bought $500,000,000 of the bonds, and nearly as much was covered by the sale of foreign bonds by French investors.

DEEP IN DEBT IN 1914

The transaction largely created the enormous big French national debt existing before the World War, and increased her fiscal burden a great deal. When the World War began the government, despite refundings and lower interest, was still paying $31,000,000 a year interest on the indebtedness. Incidentally, immediately after the Franco-Prussian War the amount of France's pre-war export trade to Germany doubled.

The United States under Andrew Jackson came somewhere near war with France over a $5,000,000 indebtedness payable on account of French destruction of American shipping during the Napoleonic Wars. After many years France had finally agreed by treaty in 1801 to pay the money, and we agreed to lower our tariff on French wines.

We did our part, but the French Chamber of Deputies for several sessions refused to appropriate indebtedness payments. Jackson threatened reprisals against French property, and the Whigs in Congress under Henry Clay repudiated him. Ministers were recalled, and war threats were heard in both countries. The French chamber then voted the money, to be paid only when Jackson personally explained or apologized. Britain offered to intervene in 1836 and payment was made, although Jackson didn't apologize.

STOPS LOSERS BEFORE

Between 1795 and 1816, Britain lent about $12,000,000 to Austria. No presumption was brought for interest payment and the British Exchequer carried the charge. There wasn't ever any great hope of getting this war debt paid, but in 1823 with the debt amounting to about $16,000,000, the Austrian Emperor agreed to pay $2,500,000 and did. A war-time loan of about $2-000,000 to Portugal was canceled by Britain by treaty in 1815.

That was virtually the entire history of inter-governmental war loans until first Britain and then the United States began to pass out billions to lick the Central Powers.

MAYBE UNITED STATES

REPUDED A FEW
United States itself still theoretically owes an old war debt. King Louis XVI advanced nearly $2,000,000 to the Colonies between 1776 and 1781 which was not repaid, presumably due to the fact that the king was beheaded.
But there are heirs of Louis XVI alive, and it is believed that under our arbitration treaty with France they might bring claims for payment.

The British Corporation of Foreign Bondholders was organized a few years ago to bring action for $60,000,000 alleged due British investors, and indeed as a result of their unpaid Civil War loans to Southern Confederate states.

The great modern example of debt repudiation is Russia's wholesale repudiation of nearly $7,000,000,000 in private and foreign indebtedness. The Soviet took the position that the Russian people were not responsible for debts incurred by the Czarist regime.

Defaults on national debts to private security holders were not infrequent until recent years. The most spectacular defaults were those of Argentina, which about 1890 would have bankrupted the great firm of Baring Brothers of London with liabilities of $100,000,000 and not the Bank of England stepped in. The most important nation now in default on bond payments is Mexico, which has had a varied record of defaults, negotiations, resumption and rearrangements since 1914.

WHY LOANS ARE MADE

It may be more or less appropriate to close this article with reference to what our country did in 1914. The post-war Austria. We were one of those who helped with loans to save Austria from chaos after the war and our share was about $25,000,000. Inter-estantly, just the other day the Bank of England generously again "saved
Austria from chaos" by a quick loan.
Congress, in 1922, agreed to postpone payments until 1941 or 1943 providing the European lenders did the same, in these words:

"Whereas the economic structure of Austria is approaching collapse and great numbers of people are in consequence in immediate danger of starvation and threatened by disastrous conditions, and whereas the growing out of extreme privation and starvation and whereas this government wishes to co-operate in relieving Austria from the immediate burden created by her outstanding debts—

Germany is not in as unhappy a position as post-war Austria. But there were enough similarities to cause President Hoover to urge the one-year moratorium and if conditions grow worse in Germany instead of better the inference is obvious.

Liberal M.P. Is Wed To Alberta Girl In Ottawa

Ottawa, Ont., July 13.—Many members of Parliament attended the wedding here to-day of Miss Iola Edwards of St. Paul, Alta., to John Francis Buckley, Liberal M.P. for Athabasca. It was solemnized in Knox Presbyterian Church, with Rev. Dr. George E. Ross officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by William Duff, M.P. for Antigonish-Cape Breton. Mr. and Mrs. Buckley left this afternoon for Lucerne-in-Quebec, for a brief stay before returning to the capital until the end of the parliamentary session.

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, and several members of the late Liberal government attended the ceremony.

KILLED IN CRASH

Seattle, July 13.—Grosvonor A. Sherman, a Seattle business man, was killed here yesterday when his automobile collided with a machine driven by C. L. Beers of Issaquah at a street intersection.

Beers said he entered the intersection, expecting Sherman would stop, but that he sped on instead. Sherman's car burst into flames after the crash and the body was partly burned. Beers and a girl companion were not injured. A widow and six-year-old son survive Sherman.

Court Decides Wife Entitled To a Holiday

London, July 13.—Magistrate Hallett of Marlborough has decided a wife is entitled to a holiday just like any other worker.

A mother and three children appeared before Hallett to-day with the complaint that she had the opportunity of a fortnight's holiday in the country with her children, but that her husband objected and had threatened that if she went he would desert her.

"It's an unreasonable thing to prevent a wife having a holiday," the magistrate said. "The best thing is for you to go and take the consequences. If the husband refuses to take you back he will be guilty of desertion."

Girl Drowned In Trying To Save Small Brother

Spokane, Wash., July 13.—Violet Brown, fifteen, gave her life in an unsuccessful attempt to save her ten-year-old brother, Robert, from drowning in Ferman Lake, east of here, yesterday.

The two children, with their mother, Mrs. Emily Brown, of Spokane, and two smaller sisters, stepped off a ledge into deep water. Violet struggled with Robert, but went down before lifeguards could reach her. The mother and the other two children were rescued.

Lifeguards recovered the bodies in thirty minutes.

CHILDREN'S AID CAMP OPENED

Over 150 Attend Saturday's Ceremony at Cadboro Bay; Reeve Officiates

Over one hundred and fifty interested friends of the institution attended the opening of the summer camp of the Children's Aid Society on Hobbs Road, Cadboro Bay, on Saturday afternoon, when Reeve Crouch formally dedicated the recently-erected buildings to their new function. Saturday's little ceremony represented the attainment of a goal for which the society has long striven, that of a properly-equipped summer camp where their little charges may enjoy all the benefits of long, healthy days in the open air, with adequate sleeping accommodation in a well-planned building.

AMPLE ACCOMMODATION The camp affords spacious accommodation for the thirty-four children who are in residence for the summer, and in addition to the new community hall, the wide verandas of which are being utilized as sleeping porches for the little boys and girls, other improvements have been effected this year to the establishment.

The two acres of grounds have been fenced through the generosity of the Gyro Club, hot and cold water has been installed, as well as toilets, showers and a septic tank. There is a fine large kitchen, fitted with convenient sinks, and the work of the matron and staff is greatly lightened by the improvements.

Reeve Crouch in his address congratulated those who had supported the Children's Aid and tried through it to make up to the boys and girls some of the pleasures and joys which should be the privilege of every child. In the course of time these children would come to manhood and womanhood and be citizens of Canada, guiding its ideals, controlling its destinies. It was surely a duty to give at least as much thought and attention to these young citizens as to any of the natural resources of the country.

H. L. Butteris, president of the Children's Aid Society, presided, and welcomed Aldermen James Adam and R. T. Williams, who brought the good wishes of the City Council and Mayor Herbert Anscombe's regret at his inability to be present. Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson took part in the brief devotional service which preceded Reeve Crouch's address, and tea, served by the C.G.I.T. girls, followed, members of the ladies' committee being in charge of the refreshments.

WIFE OF ONTARIO MISSIONER DIES

Mrs. L. Garrett Contracted Typhoid at Cree Indian Mission

Hamilton, Ont., July 13.—Typhoid fever, contracted as a result of a winter in the bush of northwestern Ontario, proved fatal here yesterday to Mrs. Mary Caroline Garrett, wife of Rev. Leslie Garrett, Mr. Garrett is an English missionary stationed among the Cree Indians 500 miles north of Sioux Lookout.

Mrs. Garrett became ill last December in the small outpost where she was working with her husband. She was too weak to be moved by dog-sleigh, and not until June 19 was she brought out to Sioux Lookout, where an airplane lighted at the outpost and her plight was revealed. She was rushed to hospital here and two weeks ago typhoid developed.

Will Be Matron In Hospital At Baffin Island

Montreal, July 13.—A journey north to Moose Factory by rail and canoe, thence to Cartwright Island and a month's voyage to Pangnirtung on Baffin Island by the steamer Ungava, faces Mrs. Carol Sauzier of Ottawa, visiting friends here. Mrs. Sauzier will be accompanied by Miss Prudence Hocken of Winnipeg, a trained nurse. They will open a new Anglican hospital at Pangnirtung, which Mrs. Sauzier will act as matron.

The physician, who will be its medical director, is already in the district. Mrs. Sauzier has been matron of the Indian residential school at Moose Factory for the past three years.

SEATTLE GIRL LOVELY BRIDE

Miss Loyal Treat Married to Percival K. Nichols, Jr.; White-wigged Bridesmaids

Of much interest to Victoria friends of the bride was the marriage of Miss Loyal Treat, daughter of Mrs. Harry Whitney Treat and the late "Kimmie" Treat, sportsman and clubman, Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Florence Henry Memorial Chapel, in The Highlands, to Mr. Percival King Nichols, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Percival King Nichols of New York.

The chapel was filled with white flowers from Highlands' garden—with lilies on the altar and clusters of them tied to the pews. Candles stood in the chancel and before the chancel rail, where Dr. Herbert H. Gowen waited in his black and white robes and Mr. Nichols stood with his best man, Mr. Holt Berni of Portland.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ronald Walker, Miss Florence Agan, Miss Jane Nettleton, Miss Georgina Swanson, Mrs. Gordon Alexander McLean, Miss Grace Gierin of Sequim, Miss Glen Kerry and Miss Glad Matthews. They were all in white gowns of net over tulle, made with wide full skirts and fitted, pleated bodices, with a short jacket of net worn over the décolletage; lace mitts, white shoes and a necklace of clouded crystals, and French wigs of white silk dressed plainly with a low coiffure at the neck. Their Colonial bouquets were edged with lace and made of white gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Donald Van Sicker, her sister's maid of honor, wore a white gown of crepe de Chine made with a V neck and fitted bodice and a wide skirt made with godets. Her short sleeves were partially hidden by a short cape of silk; her mitts were of lace, and she wore a French wig of white silk coiffed like the bridesmaids. Her bouquet was of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Little Bobby Van Sicker was ring bearer in a white satin Lord Pauntlebury suit, with a ruffled lace collar and lace frill. He carried the ring on a small white satin cushion.

The bride was very lovely in an imported gown of white satin with a closely fitting bodice and a wide skirt. Her only train was a wide band of Brussels point lace that had belonged to her grandmother. Her veil of tulle was bound in a tight cap to her hair by orange blossoms and a band of the same Brussels lace. Her golden blond hair was the only note of color in the chancel, where the bridesmaids stood in their chairs on each side. Her only jewelry was an oak leaf pin of diamonds, a gift from the bridegroom's mother, which has been worn by Nichols brides for two generations.

Before the ceremony Mrs. A. S. Kerry and Mrs. Langdon-Henry sang "Oh Promise Me," and Mrs. T. J. Trafford-Hutcheon played the wedding march on the organ. During the ceremony Mrs. Henry and Mrs. Kerry sang "Oh Perfect Love."

Mrs. Treat was very lovely in a gown of chartruse lace with a matching lace scarf tied in the front. Her shoes matched the gown, and she wore long white gloves and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Nichols was in egg-shell satin covered with black lace, with black shoes and a corsage of yellow roses.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Seattle Golf Club, which was founded by the late Mr. Treat. Mr. and Mrs. Nichols are spending their honeymoon on a motor trip in Canada.

ess Colville, and Mrs. H. R. Gale assisted the hostess in receiving. After tea, through courtesy of Mrs. H. R. Gale, the visitors were taken to "Bancroft" where they spent an enjoyable half hour viewing the wedding gifts of Dr. and Mrs. Ronald Scott-Moncrieff. Those present were: Mrs. W. O. Wallace, Mrs. A. REX BEACH ON NEW FASHIONS

Explores Departure From Bobbed Hair and Short Skirts

Halifax, N.S., July 13.—Achievement of political and economic freedom has released woman from the domination of fashion's designers, nor the ge-old desire to attract and please. Rex Beach, United States author, observed here in the course of a newspaper interview.

"Short skirts, bobbed hair and freedom from confining hampering garments made woman more attractive than the new clinging, guttering shions which she has adopted," said the author who thinks present-day styles of dress indicate femininity's shion to the tyranny from which she as supposed to have escaped within cent years.

"Woman is going back to the styles, not the mental attitude, of another generation," declared Beach, "and it's very disturbing. A man doesn't know whether to trust his eyes or his instincts."

Right breakfasts start you on the Road to things you want

ENJOY your meals. Join the I-can-eat-most-anything folks. Quit the ranks of those who have to murmur, "Well, I wish I could." These are things that everyone wants to do. Don't you?

Well, you can, if you don't neglect constipation. You can attain to many things now denied by first thoroughly eliminating waste matter daily through eating more roughage. Prove this for yourself. Start a two weeks' test. Eat Post's Bran Flakes every morning as a cereal with milk or cream.

With berries or fruits these crisp, golden flakes are delightful.

You'll find a difference. You'll feel a whole lot better — on the road to things you've wanted to do, but couldn't. Don't stop at the end of two weeks. Eat Post's Bran Flakes regularly for health and enjoyment. Made in Canada.

Ordinary cases of constipation, associated with too little bulk in the diet should yield to Post's Bran Flakes. If your case is chronic, consult a competent physician at once and follow his advice.

RUSSIAN OPERA SEASON ENDS

Sir Thomas Beecham's Ex- periment in London Proves Big Success

By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent

London, July 13.—London gave a warm welcome to the season of Russian opera and ballet, which has just closed.

In six weeks 92,834 people patronized this experiment, at the Lyceum Theatre, of Lionel Powell and Sir Thomas Beecham, and the total receipts amount to about $300,000. The orchestra alone cost $5,000 a week. Chaliapin drew a fee of $2,800 for each performance. He contracted to do two performances in each of the six weeks, but actually he did three extra performances, so that he earned $42,000, and was entitled to every cent of it.

"The supreme artistry of the singers and the musicians was a revelation to London," says a critic of note from abroad. "Your theatre-goers here, tired of shabby old-fashioned scenery and costumes, were quick to appreciate the blaze of color of the scenery and costumes at the Lyceum, and the wonderful movement of the chorus was a tremendous factor in the success of the season."

"Chorus here have palled upon audiences because they have been too static. Oratorios and choral singing have done a lot to harm operatic music, and have deprived operas of movement in the chorus."

WOMEN FICKLE!

They're Too Capricious in Regard to Style; Says Paris
Fashion Expert

BY JULIA BLANSHARD

WOMEN FROM THE FIVE AND TEN
Cent Store girl to the society woman, look tremendously well gotten up.

They have the prettiest faces in the world. They are the best-groomed, the most marvelously-coiffured, manicured, made-up.

But women seem something with a restlessness that is reflected in the way they keep buying new clothes. They flock to follow new styles in a fickle manner astonishing to a European.

Few of them seem to have a style of costume crystallized as their very own.

SEEN CHANGE IN WOMEN

This is the half-complimentary, half-critical appraisal given by an observant little French visitor, Rosette Hargrove, noted Paris fashion writer.

"In Paris," Mrs. Hargrove continued, "women buy in season, twice a year, costumes and accessories to last through the season. Not many French women have more than four ensembles, or the equivalent in a given season, with perhaps four evening gowns."

"We have no country clubs. The French woman does not play golf or tennis, so she doesn't need the constant change of sports things that women here require."

"I think the whole idea of being well-dressed is different in Paris," she pointed out. "If the well-dressed French woman goes where we dressed women are, and knows that her costume is good, even if it is not new, that is sufficient for her."

COLOR SURPRISES HER

Love of color intrigued Mrs. Hargrove. Most of her charming clothes are black or white, with a few perfectly lovely printed ensembles from Jean Patou or some other famous couturier. The way women like rich color, especially for evening wear, is something new to her.

It is as a hostess in her own home that the western woman shines, according to Mrs. Hargrove's estimate.

"I have never seen such lovely table decorations as they arrange, or such charming home parties as they give. In France we take visitors to a restaurant, so it is a new and enjoyable experience to see so much home-entertaining."

BUSINESS WOMEN SCARE HER

The successful business woman scares her not a little. The most phenomenal sight she saw in America was a luncheon of 250 fashionists.

Nothing of this sort has even been held in France. She said:

"When I saw those women, all so well-groomed, so self-confident, and when I realized that many men in France could never dream of getting the salaries they get, I was completely dumfounded."

The second most astounding thing to her is the way women know what they want from life, realize they can get it, and plan for it.

"Our French working girls might dream of a home and not having to work. But Western working girls feel it is natural for them to hope for estates, yachts, babies. Of course, many get them, so it proves they are right."

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MRS. MARY ELLEN

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

TOO FAT BABY MAY REFUSE TO EAT BECAUSE HE'S OVERFED

As I seem to be saying very frequently these days, the loss of baby's appetite may have so many causes that it is futile to attempt to cover them all in one discussion. Between six months and one year or beyond, a drastic loss of appetite may mean imminent teeth, a cold, an upset digestion, overfeeding, too rich food, or extreme heat—any number of things.

Despite the variety of causes, when baby loses his appetite, it is always a splendid idea to cut down on his food. There is danger in forcing food on a baby who shows a marked reluctance to accept it.

DECLINES FOOD

"Kindly help me solve the problem of my nine-month-old baby who weighs twenty-two pounds," requests Mrs. A.E.B. "He sleeps from 7 p.m. to 8 a.m. sleeps after his bath, and has a nap in the afternoon. He has never been sick. He has six teeth, is very active, and has been on a regular schedule since birth. His hours are now 6, 10, 2 and 6, with orange juice and cod liver oil between."

"Here is my trouble. Recently he refuses to eat but a teaspoon or so of any cereal, vegetable, or soup. He never takes more than four ounces of milk, and cod liver oil between."

WEDDING OF WALKIE MAN IS DEFENDED

In Radio Address Rev. Robertson Orr Explains Ceremony in Vancouver

Canadian Press

Vancouver, July 13.—Branding newspaper accounts of the Walkathon wedding as not only "vicious but dishonest," Rev. Robertson Orr made a sweeping attack on the press, the Attorney-General's Department and the Vancouver Ministerial Association in Moose Hall here Saturday evening in a broadcast address.

In explaining the events leading up to the actual ceremony, Mr. Orr said: "About 7:30 p.m. Wednesday I was called to the phone, where I spoke to a newspaper man whom I have known for about three years. He asked me to marry two friends of his and when, after I had satisfied myself the legal requirements had been complied with, I consented, he said he would call for me later."

SAW MICROPHONE

"About 9:30 he arrived and I met a Mr. Rogers, whose name I had never heard of until that time. We drove to a certain address on Davis Street and the car pulled up to the curb quietly. Certainly there was no crowd there at that time, and we went up to a small room, where about twenty people, including the bride, a fine, decent-looking girl, and the bridegroom, were congregated. It was during the ensuing conversation that I heard of the Walkathon wedding, and first saw the microphone. Even then I did not suspect the truth or what was being broadcast from this city before and one quite recently."

"I absolutely had no knowledge this marriage ceremony was to be broadcast to Athletic Park. When I did see a man at the microphone in the next room I ordered him away. To me it was a private wedding, for which I take full responsibility. It is mine. I had no knowledge of any publicity being given this ceremony."

To prove this Mr. Orr quoted a letter from Mr. Rogers to the secretary of Mr. Orr's church, in which Mr. Rogers stated the minister had not been told of the broadcasting of the service and therefore had no knowledge of any publicity.

STATED REASONS

Proceeding, Mr. Orr said: "My reasons for performing that ceremony were laid out in order before the ceremony commenced. One was that there was no 'just cause,' as the Marriage Act says, why they should not be lawfully joined together. Another was that if I had walked out of that room, it would have shown I was afraid of public opinion."

Mr. Orr then said he had always been free and independent in action, and had tried to cut through prejudice, press-created, to reason, and could not insult a lady who had every moral and legal claim on his services. "Further, I saw no congregational puppet. Most of my people would think of dictating to me what to do. Had I been that kind of rubber stamp I would not be here to-night."

After quoting the letter of Mr. Rogers referred to above, Mr. Orr stated in part:

"My services can't be bought for commercial purposes."

YOUNG WOMAN SPEAKS

At this time Mrs. "Bud" Ferguson, on invitation of Mr. Orr, stood and told those present she had been a contestant in any walkathon and that her mother was alive and a member of the Baptist Church at the present time.

In relation to this Mr. Orr had this to say:

"The man who would insult that lady by walking out of the room is not a man and is not a minister. The lady in the room, and it is the lady who engages the minister, with her mother's consent, and if he is satisfied morally and legally from a Christian standpoint, it is his duty to perform the ceremony."

Mr. Orr then turned his attention to the press, quoting from the Daily Province of July 9 that "they had gone there to see it, a show staged for the benefit of a walkathon contest." He then went on to say they had the night carried an advertisement for which they had received many dollars.

SAYS PROMOTERS LOST

"The only institution in the country which got any personal profit out of Wednesday night's performance was the press," he said. "The promoters lost $350. The minister received nothing, and the press had accepted $1,000 and over for this walkathon alone." Mr. Orr then spoke of the commercialization of the wedding by the press, saying it was the "biggest sinner and most sinning institution on this continent."

DESCRIBED AS LIE

He dealt at length with the statement of The Province that after the ceremony the bride and groom and attendants, accompanied by the officiating minister, drove to Athletic Park, where they married around the field. "This," said Mr. Orr, "was a damnable and libelous lie to cheapen me in that way. The man who compiled that report was either a liar or dishonest. For if he were honest, and at the park, he would know I was not there, and if he were not there, then he composed that report sitting at his desk, when he had not the facts before him, and he is vicious. Why did he do that? He did it for profit."

NO CHEAP WORDS

Mr. Orr then turned his attention to The Vancouver Sun, quoting from the article on the marriage ceremony, in which he claimed, the only people who degraded the ceremony was the press. "Not one cheap word was uttered—not one cheap word, and yet one paper comes out and says: 'Mr. Ferguson wedded the red-headed bride' and 'the bride was picked up and disappeared into the bush,' and received the profit. Do you think they will record this? That is why I am broadcasting this, for the time is coming when the radio will be the biggest factor in the country, because of the lack of ethics in the press."

ELECTRIC EYE PILES UP BAGS

It Does Job in Better Way Than Girls in the Factory

Milwaukee, July 13.—The "electric eye" which looks like a radio tube, has been put to work in a factory here to pile up cloth bags. Every time a sack comes from under the stitching machine on which a girl makes them, the "electric eye" sees it, gives it a wink and attends to placing it on top of the one that has gone before.

The girl completes her work on the bag. A moving belt carries the bag toward a stacking table. When the bag sets just so far, metal fingers come up under the bag and toss it on the pile.

The fingers come up only when a bag is on them. Above the fingers is an ordinary light bulb and below them is a black tube containing the "eye." When an object passes between the light bulb and the tube, the shadow it casts causes the electric eye to "do its stuff."

The electric eye is a photo-electric cell, sensitive to minute changes of light. Any interruption of light starts it, starting the flow of a tiny electric current which, when transferred through a relay to a motor, becomes strong enough to throw a switch. So at the Chase Bag Company, the bags cast the shadow that moves the eye that turns the switch to lift the fingers that pile up the bags.

Before the new method was used, a girl stood at the back of each stitching machine, cut the threads with scissors and tediously piled the bags. Other applications of the electric eye are being planned, including the counting of bags and operations where the movements of human hands cannot be synchronized.

It took a year and a half to get this eye working satisfactorily. Wyeth Allen, consulting engineer for the company, worked out the application with engineers of the General Electric Company, who developed the tube.

We are the first, at least in this part of the country, to put it to practical use," said Mr. Allen. "But we are with our heads in our hands many times wondering what to do next as we experimented. During the development we had a mechanic who, for six months, stood over the thing to keep it going. Now 90 per cent. of bag piling in Chase plants is done with the electric eye."

Sault-St. Marie, Ont., July 13.—When their gasoline speeder ran into a moose on the Algoma Central Railway and was derailed, Jack Louis, chief of the Ontario forestry department branch at Hearst, and George Banks, railway carman, had a narrow escape from death. The moose picked itself up and disappeared into the bush.

BELIEVES MIND BEHIND NATURE

Williams Bay, Wis., July 13.—The view there is a purpose behind the operation of nature is taken by Dr. Edwin B. Frost, blind director of the great Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago and a student of astronomy for forty-five years.

He expresses himself on the event of his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary, which he will celebrate to-morrow with some 350 guests at his home, which is situated within the shadow of one of the world's largest telescopes.

"Everything we learn from the observation point of view in the study of astronomy seems to me to point precisely and always toward a purposeful operation of nature," he said. "When you accept this, it seems to me to be inconsistent with physical sciences not to believe in a mind behind the universe. I cannot imagine the planets getting together and deciding under what law they would operate. Nor do we find anywhere in the solar or stellar systems the debris that would necessarily accumulate if they had been operating at random. In a purposeful creation I find it not at all inconsistent to believe there must be a mind behind the developing process."

Daily Double Proves Popular Bet on All Canadian Tracks

Great Many People Still in Doubt as to What New Wager Means

Elks Have About Cinched First Place in Senior Ball League

Pitching of "Doc" Webster Features Play of League Leaders

EVER since horse racing opened in British Columbia last month at the Colwood track, the fans have taken a great interest in the "daily double," which was introduced this season. Wire reports from prairie and eastern tracks where the new bet has since been introduced, have told about the "daily double" paying $704.40 at the Polo Park, Alberta, and $1,400 at the Blue Bonnets track in Montreal. All these things have tended to make the new combination bet a popular one and yet there are a great many people who don't know just what the "daily double" means.

The "daily double" pool is an entirely separate one and has no connection with any of the usual seven pools on the daily races. The double pool is divided among those selecting the winners of both the second and fourth races on the one special "daily double" ticket.

Here's how it's done. Anytime after the special "daily double" ticket opens you can purchase a double ticket. Just walk up with whatever you want to wager and tell the ticket seller the numbers of the two horses in each race. It is not necessary to mention any horse or horses, just lay down the money, tell the seller your numbers, he will punch the duplicate tickets and give you one and keep the other.

The most convenient way is to buy a "daily double" ticket as you get to the track, should the two horses whose numbers you gave the ticket-seller win, you immediately start on a frantic search through your pockets to find out what you did with your half-ticket.

The full rules governing the "daily double" are all printed on the official programme each afternoon, and there is no excuse for anyone who does not comply with them. The new system has proved popular throughout the entire Dominion. The biggest prize paid to date in British Columbia was $3,400 at one of the Vancouver tracks.

The Elks have just about clinched first place in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League following their smashing victory over the second place Sons of Canada on Friday evening. The entire season has been topped by the league all season and nothing but a miracle can dislodge them now. The leaders have only been defeated once and against the Elks, but they have won victories. Not a bad record! The Sons of Canada have gained a strangle hold on second place and about the only interesting part in the race now is who will finish third and gain the last place in the play-off series. The Eagles and Tilleums are running neck and neck and it is a toss-up as to which club will win. The Elks will play the Elks in the finals.

The Elks are to have the edge over the remainder of the clubs, mainly through their power with the willow. All members of the team are hitting the ball hard and very seldom has pitching baffled them this season. In Friday's game it was their work with the stick that pulled them through. Home runs by Forbes and Mackenzie provided the winning runs.

One of the surprises of this year's race has been the pitching of "Doc" Webster for the Elks. Ordinarily a first baseman, Webster took up pitching at the beginning of the season when the antlered ribs were stuck for hurlers and has made a first-class job of it. He has only been beaten once this season and has turned in several fine exhibitions.

Another strong link in the defence and offence of the Elks has been the veteran Art Minnis who is holding down second base. Donning his uniform this year after a lay-off of a couple of seasons, Minnis is playing great ball and has been a tower of strength to the leaders. All in all, the Elks have a sweet looking ball club and should win the championship.

St. Louis Browns Infielders Fined

Detroit, July 13.—Jim Levey and Lin Storti, infielders with the St. Louis Browns, yesterday were fined $100 and $50 respectively, for breaking club training rules. In announcing the fines, the club management did not say what infractions the infielders were guilty of. Both made errors which contributed to the loss of the second game of Saturday's doubleheader after the Browns had a good lead.

Askey Strokes His Juniors To Dramatic Win In Senior Fours

Winners of Junior Fours on Friday Come Through With Great Victory in Feature Event of N.P.A.A.O. Regatta at Burnaby Lake; Vancouver Crew of Gordon Brothers Disqualified for Crowding Victoria; Dan Moses and Ray Ditchburn Retain Senior Doubles Title; J.B.A.A. Tackweights Capture 140-pound fours and Get Credit for Displaying Best Form in Regatta; Noel Demille Again Winner of Senior Singles

Vancouver, July 13.—The four husky Gordons, undefeated in two years of rowing, lost the senior four-oared championship of the North Pacific Association of Amateur Oarsmen in an unfortunate but thrilling race at Burnaby Lake on Saturday afternoon. Leading by half a length at the mile post, the Vancouver crew slowly and surely edged into Victoria's water and the James Bay Athletic Association four, which was just starting its final sprint, found itself forced off its course.

Referee Norman C. Sawers immediately declared the Vancouver crew disqualified and Victoria winners of the event.

Vancouver Rowing Club retained its aggregate championship, however, chiefly through the predominance of its scullers. The city club amassed a total of seventeen points with Victoria registering eleven and Portland one. In two sculling events, the senior singles and the quarter-mile dash, there were no Victoria entrants and, Vancouver captured points for both first and second place.

Vancouver made a splendid showing against the University of Washington eight in the last race of the day, losing by six feet in the final drive. The crews raced neck and neck over the entire mile and 550 yards with Vancouver always a contender. In fact, the B.C. boys were only beaten out in the last four lengths.

Two of the Gordon boys, Ed and Boyd, went into the eight after their exhausting race in the fours, and were a big factor in the V.R.C.'s showing. Ted O'Donnell, Winnipeg, oarsman, stroked a good race against the university squad.

DEMILLE TAKES SINGLES

Noel Demille, senior singles champion of 1929 and 1930, regained his honor after a stiff struggle with Ted Pratt, last year's junior winner. Eddie Sneed, 140-pound champion, was third.

Demille and Pratt raced row to row for nearly a mile without either establishing supremacy. Sneed was in the contest until the three-quarter-mile mark, when he began to fall back. He finished second, however, and put on a sprint which brought him across the finish line only four lengths behind Pratt.

Sculling with a beautiful long steady stroke, Demille, full use of his greater weight in the last 500 yards. He finished three lengths ahead of Pratt, who never faltered in his lovely style. The time was 8:27½, considerably better than last year's at Burnaby.

Pratt turned the tables in the quarter-mile sprint, which was one of the most exciting events of the afternoon. He sent his slim craft across the line only a scant seven feet ahead of Demille in 1 minute 44½ seconds. O. Kendall of Portland was third.

FOUR STARTERS

There were four starters in the senior four events, two Victoria crews, Vancouver and Kelowna. Portland's crew failed to reach the city and was scratched. All crews began the race from the stake boats, where they held the shells in line until the starter's gun.

On somebody's race for the first half-mile, with Kelowna showing unexpected strength. The J.B.A.A. crew, stroked by Rex Askey, was setting a lively pace, with the Gordons brothers in hot pursuit. Soon it developed into a duel between the two, Victoria's crew on boat dropping back and Kelowna going out of the race when its stroke, B. Tait, collapsed after being hit by his own handle.

The Gordons, rowing a strong, rugged race, gradually caught the Askey crew and pulled into a slight lead at the mile post. Then their boat began swinging off its course and, despite warnings from the referee who was following in a speed boat, the shell continued to ease into Victoria water. Both crews put on a desperate sprint, Vancouver crossing the line a length ahead of Victoria. Had the J.B.A.A. had a finish which fit its spirit, however, the Victoria might have won. The time was 7:38.

SONS DEFEAT TACOMA NINE

Score 7 to 3 Victory in Evening Battle Against Slavic-American Team

After battling to an 8 to 5 draw in eleven innings in the afternoon clash, the Sons of Canada defeated the Slavic-American nine, 7 to 3 in six innings in the evening fixture at the Royal Athletic Park on Saturday. The nighttime play was played in a steady downpour of rain and was called at the end of the sixth inning on account of the wet grounds.

The teams put on a fair exhibition in the extra inning battle with Lloyd Cann winning the whole way for the Sons. The visitors managed to obtain a four-run lead in the early innings, but the Sons tied it up and went ahead, only to have the Tacoma players get back onto even terms in the ninth.

Two extra innings failed to break the deadlock and the game was called in order to allow the players to get back to the park in time for the second game.

In the evening clash the Sons pushed home six runs in the third inning on as many hits to sew up the game. The visiting squad failed to show up in their afternoon form and never looked ahead, only to have the Tacoma players get back onto even terms in the ninth.

RAIN HALTS MATCHES IN TENNIS MEET

Only Eight Matches Played Over Week-end in Clay Court Championships

J. C. I. Edwards and Marsh Gordon Advance in Men's Singles; Continue To-day

With rain halting play periodically, the ninth annual Victoria Clay Courts championships got away to a poor start over the week-end at the Kingston Street Club. Eight matches were all that were played, seven singles and one doubles match being run off.

J. C. I. Edwards and Marsh Gordon, two of the seeded players in the men's singles, advanced with little trouble in the first round, 6-1, 6-1.

In the women's singles Mrs. Edwards and Doreen Swaine advanced at the expense of Maxine Ewart and I. Benson.

With the tournament set behind one day through climatic conditions, players are asked to be ready to play at a moment's notice.

Week-end results and to-day's late draw follow:

J. C. I. Edwards defeated Prentice, 6-1, 6-4.

Gordon defeated Barnes, 6-1, 6-1.

Burgess defeated Moorehouse, 6-2, 6-0.

Schwengers defeated Barlowe, 6-1, 6-1.

Miss Goddard defeated Miss B. Richards, 6-4, 6-8, 6-1.

Edwards defeated Miss Benson, 6-0, 6-0.

Mrs. J. C. I. Edwards defeated Miss Ewart, 6-0, 6-4.

Alliss Sinks Long Putt On Home Hole To Tie With Hagen

English Pro at Berlin Club Puts Up Gallant Fight Rattle Off String of Birdies on Last Nine Holes for 72-hole Score of 282 and Even Break With U.S. Star in Canadian Open Golf Championship; Magic Putter Puts Alliss Into Play-off; Heavy Rain Ruins Hopes of Other Favorites; Some Picking Up in Disgust; Thirty-six-hole Play-off To-morrow

Toronto, July 13.—An eighteen-foot putt, rammed home on the soggy eighteenth green of storm-swept Mississauga, by Percy Alliss, transplanted Englishman of Berlin, Germany, sent the Canadian open golf championship into a play-off on Saturday. His opponent in the thirty-six-hole tie duel fixed for to-morrow will be none other than Walter Hagen, Detroit, Mich., to whom the Canadian crown has proved an elusive prize to date.

"The Hag," who had set a withering pace for two days, was among the first to complete the full seventy-two hole route. He had posted an aggregate score of 282, which was regarded as comparatively safe, but Alliss and the brilliant Johnny Farrell, of Mamoroneck, N.Y., were still out on the battlefield, their chances of overhauling Hagen under the treacherous conditions far from promising.

Alliss, who had faltered badly on the first nine of the final round, required a thirty-two for the incoming trip, while Farrell needed a thirty-five.

It was a serious pair of gladiators that ploughed through the devastating storm, but both were game and never acknowledged defeat.

MAGIC PUTTER

Alliss appeared to glory in the heavy going, as birdies fell steadily before his mastery and courage, yet it was a magical putter that often, in one stroke, saved him from disaster. His downfall, that gave him his nerve-rattling final putt and the right to dispute the title claim with Hagen.

Farrell, who had the same chance as the Englishman of tying for the lead, made a heroic bid for his birds on the home green, but the putt stopped on the heavy carpet a few inches from the cup. He finished in third place, with 283, but only a stroke in front of Mortie Dutra, the towering ace from Los Angeles, Calif.

Dutra uncovered by far the most spectacular golf on the stretch drive, posting a 70 in the morning and then staged a sensational rally in the afternoon for a 68, four under par. His second round score of 75 against 68 for Hagen deprived him of the title.

The next two places also went to the United States contingent. Tommy Armour, battling in defence of his crown, landing in fifth place with 286, with Ed Dunlop, of Concordville, Pa., two strokes behind, also wound up with a par-shattering 68 for his final round.

Jules Huot, of Kent, Que., posted four consistent rounds to lead the home forces. His aggregate of 291 was the last set alone—his forehead was a devastating weapon and his back hand, especially on cross-court drive with the ball taken on the dead run, was a masterpiece of the rhythm as nearly always went for a winning point.

A LARGE GALLERY

One of the largest galleries in the history of the Dominion classic massed behind the leaders in the afternoon, but the untimely storm crushed the enthusiasm of the majority along with a large number of a constant party. The rain descended in torrents just at the height of the crucial struggle, converting the course into a speedway of scrambling fugitives who huddled under every protective contrivance, thoroughly drenched and keenly disappointed.

Leo Deigel, four-time winner of the title, George Duncan, Fred Robson, and other veterans of the British Open team, and many others wilted so badly under the punishment of the elements that they picked up in disgust.

A LUCKY BREAK

Hagen also found the conditions exceedingly troublesome and for a time gave his loyal supporters some anxious moments. He was constantly in grip up to the thirteenth hole of the final round, where he pushed his tee shot into the Credit River. It was here that the fates were kind to him, however. His ball struck a protruding rock, bounded to another stone and finally came to rest on the edge of the fairway.

He attempted one of his spectacular recoveries, but a cunning bunker trapped the shot. The ball trickled into a deep heel print and "the Hag" failed to get out with his first explosion stroke. The succession of grief cost him a six, but he rallied resolutely to post a 74.

At this stage word had trickled over the storm

GIVEN PRIZES IN DOG PARADE

Happy Children Capture
Awards in Novel Contest
Staged by U.C.T. Saturday

Happy children to-day were displaying the prizes they won in the United Commercial Travelers' dog parade, held on Saturday afternoon from the Crystal Garden to the Royal Athletic Park. All classes of canines, numbering by actual count 276, were entered in the event and aroused a great deal of attention as they were led from the Crystal Garden, along Belleville Street, up Government to Yates and up Cook Street to the Royal Athletic Park, where prizes were awarded.

Kitty Kusma's Japanese spaniel, Bobby Ootler's young fox terrier and Albert Hill's spitz won prizes for the smallest dogs in the parade. Buddy Trace and A. Prince, with a St. Bernard and Newfoundland respectively, took the awards for the largest animals in the event.

In the class for dogs pulling wagons, Fred Lanchick won first prize, with the second award going to Mickey Fraser and Joan Jarvis. M. Hughes's dachshund captured the prize for the longest dog in the show. Judges failed to secure the name of the owner of the best-dressed dog in the show, who left for home immediately on receiving his prize. Teddy and Bunter, two police dogs, owned by Teddy Clayards, won a special award for their young master.

Cyril S. Chivers, Rotarian Percy Watson, Kivianiana G. H. Stevens and W. Oliphant, representing the Royal Athletic Park executive, acted as judges. All entrants were given theatre tickets.

The committee from the U.C.T. was composed of Frank Willert, chairman of the entertainment committee; George Briscoe, senior councillor; James Williams, chairman of the Crystal Garden entertainment committee; and E. D. LeLachur, chairman of the advertising committee.

WILSON'S FIRE IN WEEK

Dry Conditions Increase
Hazard in Province; Total
Grows

Hot and dry conditions nearly all over the province were responsible for eighty new forest fires in B.C. last week, bringing the season's total of 1,026, as compared with 504 outbreaks at this time last year.

Lightning storms were reported in the Kamloops, Cariboo and Prince George districts, there being thirty new fires in the Kamloops area. The southern interior had twenty-one outbreaks, while the Vancouver section, which includes Vancouver Island, had sixteen fires, most of which were kept within a small area.

Although the numerical total of fires is unusually high this year, efficient work by forest rangers has kept the actual damage down to a minimum.

CROP CONDITIONS BEST FOR WEEKS; FODDER IMPROVES

Winnipeg, July 13.—Moderate weather all over the west has allowed the recent heavy rains to soak well into the ground, with the general result that conditions have been more favorable than for several weeks, according to the weekly crop survey made public by the agricultural department of the Canadian Pacific Railway to-day. The report notes, however, that strong winds were still persistent during the week. Frequent showers to heavy rains fell over most of the agricultural acreage, the districts enjoying the heaviest precipitation being Manitoba, North and East Saskatchewan and North Central and Southwest Alberta. A number of districts reported the best precipitation in two years.

While the moisture was too late to make a threshing wheat crop of any degree in the drought area, the report adds, it has materially improved the outlook for coarse grains and fodder, and will also be helpful to filling of maturing wheat. A more optimistic feeling has been created, especially with regard to the fodder situation, and return of seed in the dry belt.

A substantial percentage of wheat is now heading or fully headed, though much of the straw is short. Early oats and barley are in short blade to heading and generally short. Considerable reseeded of oats and barley to supplement other fodder has been done in the past two weeks.

Half damage has been considerably less than last year at this time. Grass-hoppers are still causing some loss. In British Columbia generally clear and warm weather has prevailed during the week and, following the recent heavy rains, crops of all kinds are making rapid progress.

Luxton

Work has commenced on alterations to Luxton Hall and many volunteer workers are expected to assist during the coming week. Debenures are now available from the secretary, Mrs. W. Heath.

Miss Greta Hebdon is at the Girl Guide camp at Bradley Dyne. Mr. and Mrs. Hayward and small daughter, of Victoria, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Trace, of Glendale Cabin.

Colwood

The annual meeting of Colwood School district was held on Saturday evening in the schoolhouse and was well attended. Col. C. R. Hodgins presided and Capt. F. James, acting secretary of the school board, was secretary. The trustees and other reports were read and with estimates of $2,000 were approved. F. T. Green was appointed trustee for three years and R. W. Robinson as auditor for one year.

ARE STONED BY MANILA CROWD

Outbreak During Independence Demonstration; 150,000 Filipinos See Parade

Associated Press
Manila, July 13.—A group of United States army officers and their wives were stoned by an angry crowd of Filipinos here yesterday while scores of thousands of islanders were participating in an independence demonstration before two United States senators.

Several Americans were hit. Capt. Fred Adams of the Thirty-first Infantry, and Robert Davis, son of an army officer, wearing purple of the riot seriously.

The incident occurred at the open air swimming pool of the Army and Navy Club, when the crowd of Filipinos, evidently curious, overran the grounds. Ordered off the grounds, the islanders became incensed and started throwing stones at those in and around the pool.

Police were called, but only one officer was available, the others being busy handling the independence crowd several blocks distant. About twenty members of the club formed a phalanx and cleared the grounds, using their fists in a few instances.

150,000 THERE
The independence demonstration, staged for Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri and Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, advocates of Philippine freedom, drew a throng estimated at between 100,000 and 200,000 persons. Another 50,000 participated in a parade described as a gesture to convince the senators the people of the islands were united in their desire for political freedom.

The crowd was so dense that only a fraction of the paraders were able to pass the reviewing stand in which Hawes and Pittman stood. Paraders carried banners in English, Spanish and Tagalog (native language), bearing independence slogans.

Some senators spoke, asserting the demonstration was the most convincing proof they had yet seen of the desire of the people for independence.

Some amusement was afforded the United States spectators when the parade was interrupted by the desire of the people for independence.

DIET AND RHEUMATISM

Cure of Acute Joint Inflammation Depends on Clearing Infections Rather Than Food Limitations

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Rheumatic conditions and inflammation of the joints seems to be affected very little by diet in the majority of cases; they are brought about by infections. Control means some method of getting rid of infection. There are some conditions affecting the joints, such as gout, which are known to be associated with dietary difficulties, and which seem to be radically influenced by the proper selection of food. Acute inflammations of the joints, and particularly the type of infection seen in rheumatic fever, are not greatly influenced by diet.

McClay points out that it has been a general impression for years that sweets, meats and fruits were harmful for such patients, but he feels that this observation was due to a confusion of ordinary arthritis with gout and that there is no reason for such a belief. Dr. McClay says that patients with acute inflammations of the joints do not require any limitations of diet, except those that are made necessary by high fever and other disturbances.

A simple, easily digested diet is most desirable. It should include milk, eggs, cereals with cream, toast, butter, preserves, orange juice, ice cream and similar puddings. Because people with fever and inflammations of the joints are likely to become anemic, it is also desirable to give them fairly frequently broiled calves' liver or puree made of liver and kidneys. An excellent puree is made by using approximately two pounds of vitamins, minerals and good quantities of protein, such as muscle meats and liver.

The people who have apparently suppurative quackeries than any others are those who are growing old and have, associated with increase in age, slight inflammations of the joints. The chief value in such cases is attached to diets that are sufficiently slight in caloric value to prevent increase in weight. A large increase in weight is serious at any time, but particularly serious when it concerns someone with inflamed joints. Indeed, a low caloric diet with limited amounts of carbohydrates or sugars is the one type of diet upon which all authorities agree as being of some use in chronic arthritis deformans or in the progressive types of inflammation of the joints affecting the aged.

PERU SITUATION
FULL OF TURMOIL
FOR BONDHOLDERS

The situation in Peru is one of turmoil. Whereas earlier this year the government expressed its intention to fulfill obligations so far as possible, that was superseded by decree that money was applicable to all but secured loans "including the tobacco '76" of 1929 were to be turned over to the government; at the end of May another decree was issued reversing the earlier policy by ordering suspension of payments on all external obligations until the close of this year, information received here by C. L. H. Branson indicates. While interest on the '76 of 1929 has been paid to date, the recent decree apparently means that payments on that issue will be defaulted at the next interest date, September 1, 1931. The Peruvian National Loan '76 of 1929 has been paid to date, the recent decree apparently means that payments on that issue will be defaulted at the next interest date, September 1, 1931. The Peruvian National Loan '76 of 1929 has been paid to date, the recent decree apparently means that payments on that issue will be defaulted at the next interest date, September 1, 1931.

As between the three issues outstanding in this market, the '76's enjoy the best position, due to the fact they are secured by a first lien on revenues of the Peruvian tobacco monopoly.

However, one can see readily that with an unstable government, and one which apparently regards its external obligations as something to be taken care of at convenience, prospects for enforcement of payments by bondholders are rather uncertain. Pressure already has been brought to bear through various channels, including the American legation, but no protective committees have as yet been formed. It is likely that the latter move will be taken if present situation continues. In the case of the tobacco monopoly '76, it is understood that, with consent of majority of bondholders, action can be taken to force application of tobacco proceeds to payment of the bonds, through the Peruvian courts.

However, in the last analysis, the willingness of any government to meet its obligations is the controlling factor, and while Peru has suffered from declining revenues in common with other nations in South America and on the continent, the "ability" or "inability" to pay is to a considerable extent related to the attitude of officials responsible for determining policy.

Loose Ends

old friend and his contemporaries Pro bono Publico, Vox Populi and Junius, said Peter, James and John, or Lenin Stalin and the modern revelator, Trotsky, who by the way, is now in exile on his Palmox, which is not far from the original island of that name. Then as to the second point to notice more closely. The opposition of science or its hindering influence to Christianity. The great objective of Christianity is the building up of character, according to the plan and specifications of the Carpenter of Nazareth. Science is occupied with the "what, why and when" of things material, its weights and measurements and quantities. If it is the science of criticism referred to, then the lawful application of these questions to the Bible has only cleared up and strengthened the mechanics of Christianity; science has nothing to say of the content. The tri-motored airplane of this wonderful day is a parable; the great design of the Christ is to build tri-motored men, Faith, Hope and Love, these three, and the individual so engined, rises above the meanness and nastiness and general slush of life, and makes swift progress to that supreme landing place, a decent man.

But men will seek easier ways, some short cut, some embezzlement, even the church may have been sidetracked now and then. But no Redem nor any other color scheme, can prevail against her if she sticks to her job, while science of all shades of truth will be her faithful friend and comrade.

TWO GUNMEN AND POLICEMEN KILLED IN FIGHT

Long Beach, Cal., July 13.—With a policeman and two unidentified men, believed to be robbers, dead, a second officer was in a serious condition in a hospital to-day, following a gun battle here yesterday evening.

Police Patrolman Ralph Morgan died early to-day after he had undergone an operation and two blood transfusions had been given in an effort to save his life. Patrolman Henry W. Bogges, Morgan's companion, rallied following his operation and attendants said he had a chance for recovery.

Bogges said he and Morgan stopped an automobile on suspicion and before a word was spoken one of the car occupants fired. Morgan fell, wounded. The car started and Bogges fired, killing the driver. The second man jumped from the machine shooting, and Bogges fell with a bullet in his chest.

Later police went to another section of the city where residents reported having heard two shots and arrested a man who had been wounded three times. They expressed belief he was the companion of the gunman who was slain and had tried to commit suicide. He died in a hospital. Searching the gunman's automobile, police found tools and a marked pistol taken in a recent robbery at Bell.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Tomorrow, Victoria will be host to the University of Montreal tour party, for which reservations have been made at the Empress Hotel.

A meeting of unemployed in Esquimalt will be held to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock in Memorial Park under the auspices of the Workers' Alliance with a view to organizing and presenting demands for relief.

An appeal was sent out from the Friendly Help this morning for two cooking stoves, kitchen chairs and a kitchen table and a single mattress for two unfortunate families of Victoria. The call for the kitchen stoves is urgent, it was explained.

Matters connected with the convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island, to be held in Duncan on Thursday, will be discussed by the directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce at a special meeting to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

OBITUARY

There passed away Saturday evening at St. Joseph's Hospital, Mrs. Jean McNaught of Toronto, aged fifty-five years, relict of the late Joseph McNaught. Mrs. McNaught was born in Scotland and had resided in Victoria for nineteen years. She is survived by one daughter, Jean, at home, and a brother, John Phelan, of this city. The remains are resting at McCall Bros' Funeral Home, where services will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Interment will be made in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Word was received here Saturday from Scotland by J. M. Findlay of Estevan Avenue, that his mother, Mrs. J. G. Sewell, had passed away Friday evening. Mrs. Sewell made a visit to Victoria about six years ago and many a number of friends who will deeply regret to learn of her demise. In addition to Mr. Findlay here, two other sons, Capt. Frank Findlay of Vancouver, and William Findlay, in Scotland, survive.

The funeral of James Henry Horel was largely attended yesterday, more than 300 gathering at the family residence and church at Salt Spring Island. At the residence near Fulford Harbor, B.C., the service was held at 10 o'clock. The service was "Peace, Perfect Peace." At 8 o'clock services were conducted at St. Mary's Church and the hymns sung were "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Lead Kindly Light." There were many flowers, which testified to the respect that Mr. Horel was held by his many friends. The pallbearers were Charles Mollett, J. Cairnes, R. Price, R. Maxwell, J. Akerman and Ed. Akerman, and the remains were laid to rest in the church cemetery.

Many Attended School Meet

Special to The Times
Cobble Hill, July 13.—The annual meeting of Cobble Hill Superior School was held at the schoolhouse on Saturday evening, with G. C. Cheek as chairman. The secretary reported a balance on hand of $668.94. E. Bonford, auditor, read his report and was re-elected.
G. E. Bonner reported on the work of the board and discussed the lower assessment of land and improvement values to accrue if the board is successful in an application to the provincial assessor, and the Department of Education, to revert the district to an assessed status.
The election of trustees resulted as follows: W. J. Freeman, three years; J. H. Smith, two years, and G. E. Bonner, for one year. Fifty-one ratepayers voted, there being about seventy-five persons present.
The estimates to be raised by the district for the coming year amount to $1,618.12. On the 1930 assessment of $248,822 the levy will be 7.1 mills, a reduction of 3.3 mills from last year. Exception was taken to the wording of section 79 of the School Act, which governs qualifications of trustees, and a motion that the words, "and a resident of the district" should be struck from the act was passed by the meeting.
The new board later reappointed Trustee Bonner as chairman and re-elected G. A. Cheek as secretary, the salary being $50, as voted by the meeting.
It was decided to advertise for two teachers in The Victoria Daily Times and The Vancouver Province.

Among the guests at Hamsterley-Lakeside Saturday night dance were: Mrs. and Mrs. Kandle-Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. S. Bailey, Mrs. A. Little, Misses B. Moll, M. L. Leach, W. Leach, Helen Harris, Pat Copeland, Margery J. Benson, Margaret Baines, Florence White, Grace Copas, Rhynne Forre, I. White, Betty Willman, Audrey A. Sullivan, Evelyn Cullingham, Muriel Daniels, A. BRUHN IS TOLD ROAD NEEDS OF ALBERNI AREA

Boards of Trade Interview
Cabinet Members Regarding Public Works

Port Alberni, July 13.—Executives of the Port Alberni and Alberni Boards of Trade conferred with Hon. R. Bruhn, Minister of Public Works, Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines and W. A. Phillips, Deputy Minister of Public Works, on Saturday afternoon in All Saints Hall, Alberni. Mayor J. R. Motion presided.

E. J. Cronk, president of the Port Alberni Board of Trade, outlined the following propositions: Commencement of the Long Beach road from Sprout Lake to Tofino; construction of the Alberni-Cumberland road and immediate relief measure, which would take care of the Up-island municipalities; completion of the existing mountain road, and conversion of River Road into an arterial highway. Jos. Clegg, president of the Alberni Board of Trade, C. R. McNaughton, W. Ackland and other speakers endorsed statements made by Mr. Cronk.
Mr. Bruhn gave a resume of the financial stringency under which the government labored and could not promise consideration of the Long Beach road. With regard to the Alberni-Cumberland road not much could be done. The proposition had received previous consideration, without hope of action at the time, but conditions had since changed and he was prepared to make a reinvestigation.
Dealing with completion of the present mountain road, the minister agreed that this work should be proceeded with. He had just traveled over it and could endorse the necessity. He promised that straightening and widening would be undertaken if at all possible.
Regarding the request by the Alberni Board of Trade for River Road to be created an arterial highway, Mr. Bruhn said such a course was without precedent, but that a primary highway might be feasible.

REAL ESTATE CONVENTION OPTIMISTIC

Spirit of Thoughtfulness Behind Bright Outlook at Northwest Meeting

Major M. K. Crockett Tells Gyros of Activities at Spokane Gathering

A spirit of thoughtful optimism had been the keynote of the recent Pacific Northwest Real Estate convention in Spokane, Major M. K. Crockett, Victoria's delegate, told the Gyro Club at its luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day.

"The conference was marked by a keen determination to banish the word 'depression', Major Crockett said. He referred particularly to the thoughtful optimism of Guy Ellis, one of the leaders of the U.S. national real estate board.

CONDITIONS ON UP-TURN
The speaker was convinced the world had passed through its cycle of lessened activity and was on the upturn generally.

"The gospel of gloom gets nobody anywhere except in a slough of despondency," Major Crockett said, in decrying the publicity given depression.

He pointed to extension work in Victoria, such as that done by the C.P.R. in increasing the accommodation at the Empress Hotel, as evidence of the fact that economic leaders were confident that the present period of lessened activity was but temporary.

Real estate, while suffering to a certain extent, was not as badly off as other forms of investment or speculation.
"The speaker dealt with the close connections between the British and United States in the early days when Spokane was the headquarters for firms from the two countries."
He described the presence of hotel stands and barbecue counters in Victoria, erected to please a certain type of U.S. tourist. If the city pandered to the type of visitor, "he was just the kind of tourist it deserved," he stated.

Major Crockett read the five-minute home-town speech which he had taken second prize in the contest staged at the convention. In it he touched upon the early history of the city, its architectural and scenic beauties, its shopping activity, residential areas, gardens, health conditions, motoring possibilities, golf courses, fishing waters, hunting grounds and general sporting privileges.

REVEAL PAST IN PAGEANT

Old Figures Who Emblazoned
Pioneer Trails to Be Shown on July 20

Figures of the distant past will come to life again in the Diamond Jubilee Celebration historical pageant to be staged at the Royal Athletic Park next Monday evening. It was revealed by the committee in charge of the event to-day. The aboriginal tribes, Marco Polo, Balboa, and Drake with their picturesque ships; the Golden Hynde, Imperial Eagle, and Driver, which sailed the Pacific Northwest; Captains Vancouver, Cook, Quadra, and other immortal characters, will all appear to add the breath of romance and glamour to the spectacle.
The committee and 500 members of the cast are exerting every effort to make the pageant an outstanding success. Rehearsals are being carried on continuously day and night under the direction of L. C. Basanta.
The pageant committee, headed by Frank Waring, is leaving no stone unturned to make this pageant a fitting climax to the B.C. Diamond Jubilee.
The pageant is formed of not only a limited number of seats are available. These are now on sale at Diggon's Ltd. and Hibben and Company.

TWO LADYSMITH MEN HURT IN MINE ACCIDENT

Ladysmith, July 13.—Alexander Dunstire and Thomas Robertson, miners, were injured on Saturday in a rock cave-in at No. 8 mine, South Wellington. Both are well-known Ladysmith men.
Mr. Dunstire suffered internal injuries and is a patient at Ladysmith Hospital.

Luther Burbank Realized This City Had Edge

Late Plant Wizard Once Informed J. P. Babcock That Victoria Was Most Fortunate as It Could Grow More Flowering Species Than California.

"In Victoria you are so very fortunate, for you can grow so many more flowering species than we can in California," once said the late Luther Burbank in a conversation with J. P. Babcock, deputy commissioner of fisheries for B.C.
"Of all the schemes for beautifying Victoria, flowers, with our ideal growing climate, stand out supreme," said Mr. Babcock to-day in amplification of his suggestion to friends and experts to say the engineer had such a bad pain in the back that he could not work reliably on war exposure.
A. H. Dekker of Vancouver, opposing counsel to Mr. Sedger, brought out in examination that the engineer, although he had started out with the Canadian troops, had been transferred to the British forces and had served with them. The counsel argued that, therefore, not the Canadian government, but the British government should be liable to pay the pension.
"I don't like to see this shifting of responsibility from one government to the other," Col. Peck said. "It shows a very poor spirit."

ROSES ON BOULEVARDS
"Why not copy the example of Portland and grow roses on the boulevards? The equal distance between the trees? Roses could be grown here on the boulevards and in the public school grounds, and when in bloom they would present a glorious picture. No one in Portland thinks of picking over there," although the householder in front of whose property they are grown, is permitted to do so, if he so desires.

On one of his visits to Portland, I remember the newspapers there advertising rose trees for sale by the city at three cents apiece.

"There are more flowers in this city than in any other place, but the more there are the more beautiful the city will become."

GOLDEN POPPY

The golden California poppy could be known with advantage, Mr. Babcock thinks, around the golf links at Oak Hill Park. The California poppy is a glorious yellow and would rival the broom in its appeal, particularly from the seafarer.
Repeatedly, he said, while traveling to and from Victoria by steamer, he had heard tourists remark that there was something about the yellow broom covering Beacon Hill, and on getting nearer would delightedly exclaim, "Why, they are flowers!"
"There is much that can be done here in the propagation of wild flowers," said Mr. Babcock.

LOCAL GYROS FAIL TO GET CONVENTION

In a telegram to the Gyro Club, read at its luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day, W. Hudson, local president and delegate to the international convention now being held in Hamilton, told the Victoria club he had been unable to secure the 1936 international gathering of the organization for the city.

He stated Bob Abell, well known in Gyro circles here, had been elected international president. He had won the convention golf tournament, Mr. Hudson said.
At the meeting to-day the club decided not to hold a picnic.

LOCAL SINGERS WILL BE HEARD FROM SEATTLE

In accordance with arrangements made by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, the interests of securing publicity for the Diamond Jubilee Celebration, an all-Victoria programme will be broadcast from Seattle to-night, from 8 to 9.30 o'clock, through the courtesy of KOMO.
Those participating in the programme will be Mayor Anselcomb, Mrs. H. Wilson, Mrs. Georgina Watt, Fraser Lister and George I. Warren.
Mrs. Wilson, soprano, has been an outstanding figure at musical festivals, both in Victoria and Vancouver, since their inception, and was winner in the gold medalist competition.
Mrs. Georgina Watt is well known as one of Victoria's leading contralto singers, while Fraser Lister, tenor, was an outstanding figure in the Victoria Operatic Society's recent performances. Announcements will be carried out by Mr. Warren during the programme.

PORT ALBERNI

Port Alberni, July 13.—Miss Kathleen Moore, Miss Edith Cunningham, R.N. of Victoria, motored to Courtenay on Friday.

After spending the winter months at Beaver Creek, Mr. and Mrs. J. Irvine have taken up residence at Mount Tolmie, Victoria, where their daughter, Miss Mable Irvine, teacher at Beaver Creek public school, will spend the summer vacation.
Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Langstaff of Merritt, accompanied by her daughter Dorothy, and son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. Jones of Vancouver, were in the city as visitors on Thursday, guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. J. Mowat.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Walker, with their son Jack and nephew Fred Walker, have left on a motor trip to Victoria and adjacent districts.

SEND GREETINGS TO LOCAL CLUB

The Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club has received the following telegram from Richmond, Virginia: "Business women of five nations assembled in convention of U.S. Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs send greetings from the east to our co-workers of the west."

PENSIONS JUDGE VOICES DISSENT

Shifting of Responsibility From One Government to Another Denounced

"Shows Very Poor Spirit," Says Col. Cy Peck at Opening of Tribunal Here

Attempts of one government to pass responsibility on to another government were denounced by Col. Cy Peck, V.C., presiding judge of the pensions tribunal, sitting in the Court house to-day.

Fifty Victoria returned soldiers are asking the court for pensions or to have present pensions raised.
The case of a prominent local engineer was presented to the court by G. B. Sedger, soldier's advocate, who called doctors, friends and experts to say the engineer had such a bad pain in the back that he could not work reliably on war exposure.

A. H. Dekker of Vancouver, opposing counsel to Mr. Sedger, brought out in examination that the engineer, although he had started out with the Canadian troops, had been transferred to the British forces and had served with them. The counsel argued that, therefore, not the Canadian government, but the British government should be liable to pay the pension.
"I don't like to see this shifting of responsibility from one government to the other," Col. Peck said. "It shows a very poor spirit."

STRONG DISAPPROVAL
The presiding judge went on to express his strong disapproval of one government refusing to award pensions and trying to shift it on to another government. He instanced the case of one man who was getting a $35 pension and told how he was refused more pension by the Dominion Government on the grounds that he was under the provincial government.

"It all shows very poor spirit and I don't like it at all," said the colonel. He then ordered an X-ray to be made at the expense of the pensions board, of the back of the Victoria engineer, to find out to what extent the osteoarthritis had progressed and was responsible for the suffering of the engineer.

The pensions court then broke off the Victoria cases to complete a Vancouver case, taking the evidence of Reginald Hayward, M.P.P.

Sitting with Col. Peck is Capt. E. E. McKenzie as second member of the board.
The tribunal will continue its sittings here for two weeks.
Among the visitors at the opening session to-day was Judge Lumsden, man. Col. Peck invited the judge to a seat with him on the bench, but as the judge had other business awaiting him in the Court house, he had to decline.

WALLACE AND BARRETT WIN YACHT RACES

Take Dinghy and Star Boat
Events Respectively at Cadboro Bay Saturday

George Wallace, in his dinghy Onaway, and W. T. Barrett, in his star boat Minkaka, captured the honors in their respective classes at the Saturday afternoon meet of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club. Although cloudy and somewhat marred by rain squalls, the weather was good for sailing and the trim little boats made good time over the course. It was voted one of the most successful racing days this year and the large number of people who saw the races from the yacht club float, the boats anchored in the bay and other vantage points were thrilled throughout the events as first one boat and then another took the lead.

The Onaway covered the three-mile nautical course in fifty-two minutes, which was considered excellent time. Coming in second in this race was W. M. Hotham in the Puffin. Third was Miss Margaret Lindsay in the Mar-caret, fourth, Robin Porter in the Guillemot; fifth, Miss Helen Lindsay in the Helen, and sixth, John Hutchinson in the Murrelet.

Miss Margaret and Miss Helen Lindsay are the daughters of Commodore F. A. Lindsay and are among the most enthusiastic members of the club. They never miss competing in a race when it is at all possible.

In the dinghy event on Saturday, Humphrey Golby in the Tern and Jim Golby in the Kingfisher prepared for the race, but did not start.
Minkaka led the star boats most of the way over the course and won. Sailed by Cliff Adams, the Bluebird was second; the Boykin, Bob Blandy, third, and the Genie, N. P. Blandy, fourth. All boats kept fairly close together throughout the race and the finish was close.

The dinghies are now preparing for the annual dinghy marathon, which this year will again be held from the Cadboro Bay moorings to Callano Island. No definite date for this spectacular and unique event has yet been arranged, but it is expected it will take place toward the end of this month.

Next week-end the local yachts will cruise to Garrison Bay, San Juan Island. They will leave Cadboro Bay Saturday afternoon and will be back Sunday evening.

Irrigible Breaks Loose And Is Ruined By Fire

Mayflower of Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation Becomes Mass of Wreckage After Being Torn From Mooring Mast in Wind and Rainstorm; Captain Burned Dangerously

Kansas City, July 13.—The baby dirigible Mayflower, one of a fleet used by the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, turned last night when it struck high tension wires at the Kansas City airport, after breaking loose from its mooring mast in a wind and rain storm.

Capt. C. E. Brannigan, thirty-five-year-old pilot, was burned dangerously. R. H. Hobenack, co-pilot, rescued Brannigan from the burning wreckage, draped over the wires and nearby railroad tracks.

Claude Henderson, a member of the crew, leaped from the gondola as the ship hurtled from the ground and was bruised, as was Ray Horton, a member of the ground crew attempting to get the ship into the air to ride out the sudden storm.

Hobenack and Alexander Munro, mother pilot, were on the ground when the ship tore loose.

Many persons were in the airport to see the ship, but none got in its path after it had escaped from its crew.

HELIUM IN BAG

Hobenack expressed belief the gondola of the ship struck a hangar as it broke loose, breaking the gasoline line, which ignited when the ship hit the wires. The bag of the ship was filled with non-inflammable helium.

No passengers were on board the Mayflower, although the ship had just completed an afternoon of transporting passengers on pleasure trips over the city. The ship had accommodations for five passengers in addition to a pilot.

Train traffic was delayed as the wreckage was taken from nearby tracks. The hanging air fell within fifteen feet of a motor car and Mrs. Benjamin Leonard, Kansas City, neither of whom was injured.

A trip to Dexter, Kan., was made Saturday evening by the crew to send the bag with 10,000 cubic feet of helium gas. On the return early yesterday Capt. Brannigan said the trip was a test of whether it was feasible to send ships to helium bases for refilling rather than following the expensive practice of shipping the helium to the ship's base.

AIR PAGEANT IS AT REGINA

Reach Saskatchewan City on Tour Across Dominion; Give Aeronautic Show To-day

Regina, July 13.—Regina got their first glimpse of the transcanadian air pageant yesterday afternoon when the planes forming the tour arrived at the city airport from Winnipeg and Brandon. The five Sikka fighting planes of the R.C.A.F. roared across the city at 2 o'clock, circled the flying field and landed.

From ten until 8 o'clock planes reached Regina at intervals throughout the afternoon and early evening.

The R.C.A.F. contingent flew from Brandon, where it made a stop yesterday in order to accommodate those who were unable to get plane rides Friday, when the air tour visited the Manitoba city. Up to a late hour Sunday evening only one plane had not reached Regina. This was the stunt ship, a two-seater Aerona, flown by William Resinger. This plane was expected to leave Brandon this morning.

To-day an aeronautic show is being given by the flyers with the pageant for Regina.

FOUR ESCAPED BURNING YACHT

Wealthy Los Angeles Men Leaped Into Sea When $20,000 Craft Took Fire

San Pedro, Cal., July 13.—Benjamin F. Nysewander, Jr., executive vice-president and treasurer of the Pacific Finance Corporation, and four other men escaped with their lives by leaping into the sea when the thirty-six-foot power cruiser Commodore burned after an explosion and sank last yesterday.

The $30,000 boat, owned by the Pacific Finance Corporation, was burning from Santa Catalina Island to the harbor here. Nysewander and his companions were picked up by another power cruiser, the Vanitie, owned by Florence Lee, and taken to shore.

The explosion was believed to have resulted from a leaking gasoline line. One of the other four men who leaped into the sea was the Commodore's captain, Nysewander, declaring he believed "there was nothing unusual about the experience," would not name the others on the craft at the time of the mishap.

The Commodore was on a tour of the coast from Los Angeles to San Pedro, Cal., and was en route to the harbor here.

MAJOR BURWASH OFF TO ARCTIC

Ottawa, July 13.—Major L. T. Burwash, veteran explorer of the Canadian north country, is on his way to St. Johns, Nfld., where he will take command of the 1931 Canadian Arctic Expedition. Major Burwash will meet the steamer Beothic at North Sydney, N.S., and lead the annual patrol of the eastern Arctic Archipelago.

The patrol is sent out under the auspices of the Northwest Territories and Yukon Branch for the purpose of relieving the Royal Canadian Mounted Police personnel in the far north.

Other passengers on the Beothic's list include Dr. L. D. Livingstone, Ottawa, who will disembark at Pangnirtung, South Baffin Island, to remain for two years looking after the Eskimo and Dr. Peter Heinbecker, scientist of the University of Washington, who will carry out special investigations among the far north tribes during the voyage.

The ship, of 5,000 gross tons, was on her way to Honolulu from Sydney. She carries a crew of about forty.

Freighter Asks Assistance When Propeller Lost

San Francisco, July 13.—The Matson line freighter Golden Cloud to-day reported she had lost her propeller 234 miles west of Honolulu and asked assistance.

The Golden Cloud requested assistance in getting back to Honolulu. Whether the vessel was in any immediate danger was not stated.

Around the Docks

To-morrow morning at 8 o'clock the American Mail liner President Lincoln will arrive at the William Head quarantine station from ports in the Philippine Islands, China and Japan, according to a wireless message received in Victoria this morning by W. M. Allan, local agent, from Capt. M. M. Jensen, master of the ship. The liner should be alongside the Bithers shortly after 9 o'clock. Before proceeding to Seattle she will have passengers and cargo here, a large amount of the latter being for the H. F. Alexander en route to San Francisco for the Panama Canal route to New York.

The C.P.R. steamer Princess Patricia will take a special excursion party from Victoria to Cowichan Bay and return to-morrow. She will leave the Belleville Street piers at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and will return to Victoria at 8 o'clock in the evening. The trip will give the passengers five hours on the water and one hour ashore at Cowichan Bay.

Deep-sea ships due at Victoria this week include the Nebraska of the Pacific Mail Line, which is now coming up the Pacific from European ports by way of the Panama Canal and Callifornia, A. P. Moffatt, local agent, expects her here on Thursday or Friday. The Nebraska is one of the large refrigerated ships of the fleet and for Victoria this voyage she has 175 tons of general cargo.

Cecil Ridout of the staff of King Brothers, local shipping agents, has left for Up-Island points to spend his summer vacation. He hopes to go into the Forbidden Plateau before returning to Victoria in two weeks' time.

Returning from a cruise to the West Coast of Vancouver Island with a capacity list of round-trip tourists, the C.P.R. steamer Princess Nora arrived at the Belleville Street docks at 1 o'clock this afternoon. She proceeded later to Vancouver and will sail for the coast again from Victoria at 11 o'clock Thursday evening.

Inbound from Sydney, Auckland, and Honolulu, the Canadian Australasian liner Niagara is now on the last lap of her three-week voyage from Australia to Victoria. She left Honolulu last Friday and is due here Thursday evening or Friday morning. The Niagara has a good number of passengers and an average cargo aboard.

Ships now routed here from European ports include the Pacific Shipper of the Furness Line and the Oregon of the French Line. The Shipper is expected on Monday next and the Oregon on Wednesday. Both ships are coming up the Pacific Coast and are scheduled to call at California ports before arriving here. The Oregon will be the third ship of the French Line to call here within six weeks, the Winnipeg and the Wisconsin having been here a short time ago.

King Brothers, local shipping agents, expect the Kingsley freighter Texada to arrive here to-morrow from San Francisco with a small parcel of cargo for discharge at the Ogden Point piers. She sailed from the California ports on Friday evening and will probably be along first thing in the morning.

On her first trip of the season to the west coast of Vancouver Island for a cargo of fish oil, the C.P.R. coast freighter Nooka is now loading at cannery and fish-reduction plants along the coast for Vancouver. It is not yet known how long the Nooka will be in service this year.

The ferry steamer Indianapolis, a frequent visitor to Victoria this summer, will be here three times this week. On Tuesday and Thursday she will be here with her regular excursions from Seattle, and on Wednesday she is bringing over the annual Normal School of Washington party from Bellingham. She will have 600 aboard that day.

SAN FRANCISCO SHIPPING

San Francisco, July 13.—The Chi-chibu Maru is due early next Wednesday from the Orient via Honolulu, bringing an unusually rich cargo of gold and silk, the approximate value being $2,000,000. A large list of passengers also is aboard.

Two passenger liners, the President Johnson of the Dollar Line, and the Panama Pacific liner California arrived yesterday. The Johnson came in from the Orient and the California from New York.

Ships now routed here from European ports include the Pacific Shipper of the Furness Line and the Oregon of the French Line. The Shipper is expected on Monday next and the Oregon on Wednesday. Both ships are coming up the Pacific Coast and are scheduled to call at California ports before arriving here. The Oregon will be the third ship of the French Line to call here within six weeks, the Winnipeg and the Wisconsin having been here a short time ago.

King Brothers, local shipping agents, expect the Kingsley freighter Texada to arrive here to-morrow from San Francisco with a small parcel of cargo for discharge at the Ogden Point piers. She sailed from the California ports on Friday evening and will probably be along first thing in the morning.

GASBOAT BURNS IN VANCOUVER

Shell-shocked War Veteran Jumps Overboard From Blazing Lavaeta

Vancouver, July 13.—Before a crowded gallery that lined both sides of False Creek and the rail of the Granville Street bridge, the gas boat Lavaeta burned shortly after midnight Saturday and Andrew K. Scott, 1829 Fourth Avenue West, shell-shocked war veteran, is in Ward X, General Hospital, after he had been forced to jump from the blazing vessel.

Scott, police say, jumped overboard following an explosion. While the boat was tied to a float beneath the bridge, he succeeded in swimming to shore and turned in a fire alarm. Police found him in state of collapse and he was taken to the hospital.

The boat was towed to shore by the fire boat, J. H. Carlisle. It burned to the water's edge and sank. L. McKenzie of North Vancouver was said to have owned it.

According to an investigation made by police, Scott came home at 10 o'clock Saturday in an excited state. He had been painting the boat. His clothing was soaked and he told his mother they say, something about having pulled a man out of the water.

He left the house shortly after and apparently went back to the boat. He had spent a considerable time in the Shaughnessy Military Hospital.

The Melody Girl

By RUTH DEWEY GROVES

(Copyright, 1931, by NEA Service)

Beryl was too shaken by Angie's narrow escape to feel like telling Tommy to swim back to his uncle. Seeing that her self-sufficiency was below par Tommy decided it was a good time to give her a piece of his mind. "You wouldn't get into so much trouble if you'd let other people's affairs alone," he said bluntly. "Well," Beryl bridled. "Sure, making kidnappers out of these kids is interfering with their natural lives," he declared. "Why don't you let 'em alone to play baseball and marbles?" "Humph," Beryl snorted. "I'm teaching them a spirit of brotherhood that's a whole lot more important than marbles."

"Yes, and you nearly let one of 'em drown. What would you have done without me?" He was looking at her with the unrelenting sternness of youth in the judgment seat, but her answering glance caused him to turn away in embarrassment. Into her clear gray eyes had crept a softness that was echoed in her low voice as she said: "I don't know," with a simplicity that disconcerted him. "You're great help sometimes, Tommy," she added gently.

Tommy realized that somehow he had muffed his chance to lecture her. "You'd better give these kids something to eat," he said gruffly and sat down to amuse himself by flicking pebbles over the water. It had always been like that, he told himself resentfully. You couldn't get anywhere with Beryl Borden. Beryl sighed. It seemed that Tommy was always on hand to share her big moments, but they were never harmonious. What a pity. As she helped the boys get the lunch spread she frequently stole surreptitious glances at Tommy's back and wished he'd be more friendly. It was such a nice back and "Beryl Borden, you ought to be ashamed of yourself," she thought fiercely, "getting a thrill over a man's back. And Tommy isn't even a man—he's only a sappy kid."

She resolved to ignore him, and did while she looked after Angie. They'd rubbed him well and then wrapped him in the various assorted beach wraps they had among them. He was stretched out now on warm sand "to dry," as Beryl told him. And he was to lie quiet until he "was brittle." The doctor had given him something for the inside of a bad time even though he wasn't fed.

Before the other ate, Beryl said to him quietly: "You don't mind, do you, old man? You know I hate to impose upon you but it would be a shame to deny the others, wouldn't it? I'll keep you company and give my share to Tommy."

The spirit of sacrifice flamed high in Angie's breast. "Don't you say anything of the kind; you eat it yourself," he protested. "Guess you brought enough for him too, and I'm no cry baby."

"That's right; you're not," Beryl answered, with a pat on his shoulder. "You're a real man, Angie." She offered him a drink of water but he made a face and shook his head. Then, having done all she could for Angie, she found herself unable to keep her mind off Tommy. He was taking no part in the preparations for lunch, but still sat, sniffling his pebbles. She guessed that he was thinking of Beryl and again she resolved not to give him another thought.

But presently she went over to him and offered him a sandwich. Tommy, unlike Angie, felt no call to martyrdom. He took the sandwich with a brief, "Thanks."

Beryl sat down beside him. She hated herself for the weakness but it was seldom she had a chance to sit beside Tommy nowadays, and if she covered her action with a quest he wouldn't suspect her real feelings, she told herself.

"I suppose," she began, "that you think you're a hero and all right. Well, you'll be a hero all right, in the eyes of Angie's parents, but don't think you did any more than anyone who could swim would have done. As a matter of fact what you did wasn't so much, aside from its importance. You're a good swimmer and you know it. A kid in Angie's condition couldn't hamper you much."

Tommy turned and looked at her. "Give me another sandwich," he said placidly, "and don't talk so much."

Beryl jumped to her feet and turned her back on him. An angry retort trembled on her lips but she saw the absurdity of giving utterance to it. Tommy had no use for her whatever she did or said. Tears of humiliation smarted for release behind her eyelids which she held tightly lowered for a few seconds while she wondered which would mean the most or tell the least—to give him the sandwich or to ignore his request for it.

She hadn't made up her mind before one of the boys shouted: "Look! Here comes your car, Miss Beryl!"

Tommy glanced out at the boat where he knew his uncle must be fuming and in some difficulty. "Maybe I had," he agreed. "You could send it out but he'd be sore if a stranger drove it and I guess he had about enough fishing for to-day anyway."

"I'm sorry your day is spoiled," Beryl apologized as he climbed in with the boys in the back seat. She was glad the mechanic who had brought her car was in the front seat with her, she could at least pretend that Tommy would have sat there if there'd been room for him. "I'm just that big a fool," she thought, "although I know he wouldn't."

The mechanic got out with Tommy when they reached the garage at the crossroads, it being the place where he was employed. Beryl was infinitely relieved to learn of this fact. It made settling her bill for the new tire much easier. The garage owner knew Mr. Hoffman well and accepted without question Beryl's promise to send him the money.

"See that you go straight home and don't get into any more trouble on the way," Tommy said to her in parting.

"You needn't blame me for everything that happens," Beryl snapped back at him.

"No," he replied, and his inflection said he did. He was thinking that if she minded her own business this would be his wedding day. But say, it was Sunday. Guess they couldn't have got a license on Sunday. Tommy would have said that. Oh, well, they could have spent the day with Irene's friends and planned the ceremony in peace. It didn't take so much planning, though. All you had to do was go somewhere and get a license—yet Aunt Em and Beryl tried to make a big thing out of it. Of course, but it was a gamble anyway, so most people said. That was a funny thing, too. They'd admit that, and then they'd tell you to wait until you were sure you knew what you were doing.

much more a singer to have an accompanist.

A strange feeling of uneasiness welled up in Tommy. If Irene was at the Reed's house she would hear about his part in the rescue of Angie before he himself could tell her of it. She wouldn't like the way Beryl was mixed up in it. And he couldn't blame her, either, because he seemed forever to be getting mixed up in things with Beryl.

"Guess I'll go over there," he said to Mrs. Everett and hurried away before she could tell him he mustn't interfere with the vocalizing.

There was quite a lot of commotion at the Reed house. Angie was an only child and the thought that he had nearly lost him drove his mother close to hysteria. Angie seemed forever to be getting mixed up in things with Beryl.

Beryl had tried to quiet her but Irene made that impossible, being provoked to an outburst of temper by the interruption of her voice work.

"If you could only realize that even in this day and age a girl has no right to act like a wild Indian, you would spare your friends and your family a lot of trouble and humiliation," she declared hotly.

Beryl did not answer. She was telling Mrs. Reed what they must do for Angie.

"Look at you!" Irene went on. "Driving all over Long Island in a bathing suit. It's a wonder you didn't get arrested."

"Aw, say," Angie put in, "who'd arrest Miss Beryl? Besides, we didn't see any cops on the way home."

"It's a good thing you didn't," Irene insisted, "or we'd be thoroughly disgraced now."

"We must get Angie to bed," Beryl said to Mrs. Reed.

Angie developed a sudden trueness of spirit. "I've got to go home," she said. "I'm just that big a fool," she thought, "although I know he wouldn't."

The mechanic got out with Tommy when they reached the garage at the crossroads, it being the place where he was employed. Beryl was infinitely relieved to learn of this fact.

Of course, but it was a gamble anyway, so most people said. That was a funny thing, too. They'd admit that, and then they'd tell you to wait until you were sure you knew what you were doing.

Tommy wished he could make Irene feel as sure as he felt—but he supposed it was natural for a girl to be more reluctant to take the final step. Poor Irene. She probably was thinking he didn't love her.

"Say, watch your step," the mechanic yelled at him as he was about to back his uncle's car into a big sedan. Tommy was compelled to take his mind off Irene until he got on the open road.

The thought that she might be disappointed in his non-appearance at the point of making him impervious to his uncle's verbal assaults when at last he joined him on the fishing boat.

Tommy stood, dripping from his swim out, and listened with a vacant, dreamy expression that exasperated his uncle almost beyond words—almost, but not quite. It could have been quite for all the attention Tommy voiced.

It ended with Mr. Hoffman giving up thought of further fishing on that day and they went home. Tommy hurried into his best suit and over to Irene's house. But he did not find her at home. Mrs. Everett told him she was at the Reed's.

"She's got some wonderful news," she added importantly. "Miss Spangle telephoned this morning—but there, I'm sure she'd want to tell you about it herself. She had to practice with Mrs. Reed. She's Irene's accompanist, you know."

she explained, quite unnecessarily, for Tommy knew it as well as she. But she liked the word; it made Irene so

CHAPTER VI

Beryl was about to drive away when she called back over her shoulder to Tommy: "You'd better come along as far as the garage and bring your uncle's car back."

Tommy glanced out at the boat where he knew his uncle must be fuming and in some difficulty. "Maybe I had," he agreed. "You could send it out but he'd be sore if a stranger drove it and I guess he had about enough fishing for to-day anyway."

What's the Matter With Home?

Dorothy Dix

Finds Three Generations Clashing

Is Because Men Are Old-fashioned in Their Treatment of Emancipated Wives, and Because Children Are Too Modern for Either Parent, That There Are Fewer Peaceful and Happy Homes

VERY one knows that nothing else causes so much unhappiness in the world as what we call family troubles. There is no other such bitterness that which wells up in the hearts of husbands and wives who cannot get together, and who fight and quarrel like cats and dogs. There are tears so blistering as those which shed by parents over wayward children.

It does not matter what else gives to a man and woman, it does not give them peace and love at home all is cinders, ashes and dust in their teeth. No public success atones for the marriage that is a failure. The plaudits of the multitude are as the crackling of thorns under a pot to the man whose ears are attuned to the nagging and whines of a peevish wife. No amount of jewels, nor fine clothes, nor fine houses, nor social position compensates a wife for the lack of her husband's faithfulness and tenderness. And no lift that Fortune can bestow can ease the agony of the father and mother who watch their beloved sons and daughters starting down the road that leads to destruction, and are powerless to stop them.

Furthermore, we all know that never has there been so much domestic unhappiness as there is at the present time. Never has there been so much discord between husbands and wives, as is proved by the ever-increasing number of divorces. Never has there been so much strife between parents and children. If of the mothers and fathers that you meet weep upon your breast, and you that their children not only defy their authority, but refuse to listen to their words of counsel. Never were homes such places of civil warfare as they are to-day, and when most of us join in the chorus of the old ballad about there being no place like home, it is with a fervent inner ejaculation of, "Oh, thank God for that."

This is the more strange because never in the whole history of the world has there been so much of the raw material for creating domestic happiness as there is now. Physically—and our physical comfort means much in our happiness—we have endless things that make for the wellbeing of the home, so that even poor people with their bathtubs and their electric lights and electric refrigeration and central heat and radios and cars have luxuries that even millionaires did not have a generation or two ago, so it would seem that the home should be more attractive now than it has ever been before.

Certainly it isn't the home-killer it used to be when the housewife had to do all of the work, the cooking, scrubbing and washing with no modern conveniences. Nor is it as dull as it was before there was any telephone, and no time to tune in on the outside world, and families were thrown in on themselves all their diversion.

Nor are husbands and wives and children forced to live in such continual personal contact with each other as families were in the past. For now we have widened our social contacts until every member of a household has his or her individual outside interest, and this alone should prevent much of the irritation that inevitably results when husbands and wives and parents and children get fed up on each other.

Why, then, are there fewer peaceful and happy homes than there once were? Why are there more disgruntled husbands and wives? Why are there more rebellious children who flout their parents' authority? I think it is because we are passing through a transition stage in which husbands and wives and parents and children belong to different worlds.

Husbands and wives quarrel because women are looking at life from the new point of view, while men are still looking at it from the old standpoint. A man marries a girl who has gone from the schoolroom to the business college, and from the business college into a shop or an office where she has held down a good job and earned a good salary, and he is terribly disappointed in her because she wants to go on with the work in which she is an expert for which she has fitted herself by years of study and work.

And he expects to treat this modern woman as his grandfather treated his grandmother, and to have her look up to him as an oracle and ask his permission to go to see her mother or join a club or buy a new hat, and to be satisfied with his doing out the nickels and dimes to her on which to run the household. He never to have a penny of her own that comes to her as her rightful share of the partnership in which she shoulders her share of the work and responsibility.

And the woman who is just as intelligent and well educated as the man, and who perhaps earned as big a salary as he did, won't stand for being treated as her grandmother was, and so they fight it out and wreck their home, and even when the battle doesn't end in divorce they have killed each other's love.

And it is because children and parents live in different worlds that they don't understand each other, and about at each other across a gulf of misapprehension. So many fathers and mothers do not realize that youth has been anticipated in this day and generation, and that at sixteen a girl and boy are as sophisticated as their parents were at twenty. They do not realize that the girl and boy, and particularly the girl who is self-supporting, cannot be treated as the dependent boy and girl used to be. They do not realize that their days, other manners, other customs make things stiff that used to be too loose. They do not realize that the heavy father stuff is out, and that the thing people of this day must be reasoned with instead of ordered about.

And that is why parents and children are continually quarreling. The children belong in the present, the parents in the past. It is just as it is with husbands and wives, and the only remedy for the situation is for the husbands and parents to hurry and catch up with the procession.

Motorcycles—Old and New

"Be careful! Drive slow!" The driver hears the words, spoken by a companion who has seen a man on a motorcycle, and cuts down the speed which his auto is traveling. As keen as not the "policeman" proves to be just a wayfarer who is going nowhere or other and is not intent on arresting speeders.

Motorcycle built in 1884.

Motorcycles are used by traffic officers because the machines can overtake almost any automobile on the road.

The story of the motorcycle—or motor bike—as the English are fond of calling it—goes back to 1869 when an American, W. W. Austin, made a crude but interesting machine. It was a velocipede type of bicycle propelled—or supposed to be propelled—by power from a coal-burning steam engine. The boiler was hung between the front and rear wheels, and piston rods were joined to cranks on the rear wheel. Only one machine of this type was made, but Austin claimed to have used it in traveling many miles.

Sixteen years later, two California men—the Copeland brothers—made a motorcycle which used a belt drive. The steam engine and boiler weighed only one pound.

The first gasoline-driven motorcycle appears to have been made by two German inventors in the year 1886.

Later years saw the appearance of new model after new model. Until the present century, people looked upon the motorcycle chiefly as a racing machine; but the sidecar model came out, and was extremely popular for several years. It is still popular in England, and is still used to some degree in this country.

In 1920, Jim Davis set a "world record" for a five-mile run by a motorcycle when he traveled over the course in three minutes and forty-one seconds.

A German motorcyclist traveled over a mile course last year at the rate of 136 miles per hour, and an Englishman has made a slightly better record—137 miles per hour. Thus we see the old-time bicycle, with the help of power, turned into a machine which will travel more than two miles per minute.

GLORIA SWANSON IN "INDISCREET" AT THE CAPITOL

Ben Lyon, Barbara Kent and Arthur Lake Also in Cast of Tense Modern Life Drama

"Indiscreet" Gloria Swanson's latest offering, opened to-day for a three-day run at the Capitol Theatre to a large and appreciative audience.

The piece is a fast moving comedy-drama, with Miss Swanson rising to the opportunities afforded in a highly brilliant manner, and she is capably supported by a cast of unusual talent headed by Ben Lyon, with such other top-notchers as Barbara Kent, Arthur Lake, Monroe Owsley and Maude Eburne.

Of outstanding note is the fact that the story was written especially for Miss Swanson by the famous song writers De Sylva, Brown and Henderson, who have successfully turned their talents from song writing to that of dramatics. They have given her a story of modern society with subtle humor, with an enthralling plot of life in the upper strata of society.

There are, however, two songs used, which were written by the author-composers, "Come to Me," "If You Haven't Got Love," which, of course, are headed for "hit" dimensions if they are not already in that classification. They are used to good advantage, and fit in admirably in the scheme of things.

Ben Lyon helps no little in making a success of the picture. This handsome leading man, who is surely gaining a firmer footing on the ladder of fame, supports Miss Swanson in a manner demanding his share of the praise too. His work is of outstanding character, and adds to the evening's entertainment. Barbara Kent and Arthur Lake handle their roles in true "old trouper" fashion, and their important roles stand out with merit. Monroe Owsley as the "heavy" shines too.

COLISEUM THEATRE
If "The W. Plan," now at the Coliseum Theatre, can be taken as a present, movie fans are due for a series of romantic war films in place of the many fine realistic war ones.

The story is based on a novel by Lt.-Col. Graham Seton Hutchinson, D.S.O., of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

It is a highly romantic story and Victor Saville, who produced it for British International, had a difficult task to condense the material at his disposal to make a smooth, continuous film.

Briefly, the story tells how Col. Duncan Grant, after learning from a dying German major of a plan to attack the British Army from the rear by means of tunnels—the "W" plan—Eventually, with their aid, he blows up one of the tunnels and escapes. One of the first people he meets is a German girl, his sweetheart of pre-war days.

Grant has many hectic adventures before he is caught. He is made an interpreter to a company of British prisoners who work in the tunnels. Eventually, with their aid, he blows up one of the tunnels and escapes. One of the first people he meets is a German girl, his sweetheart of pre-war days.

One of the best scenes is a thrilling and most realistic aerial fight in which a British airplane, attempting to rescue the hero, is brought down.

TRAVELERS ARE PLANNING FINE ENTERTAINMENT

Will Hold Swimming Galas, Dances and Bathing Beauty Contest Friday, Saturday

Seldom, if ever, has Victoria seen such a programme of entertainment as has been arranged by the United Commercial Travelers for the forthcoming British Columbia Diamond Jubilee celebrations, to be held next Friday and Saturday. The gala events will include a special frolic at the Crystal Garden and sports and stage attractions at the Royal Victoria Theatre. The United Commercial Travelers are issuing a special ticket, the holder of which will be entitled to entrance to any of the entertainment.

At the Crystal Garden the festivities will open at 7 o'clock Friday evening with water polo, races for men, ladies and children, in competition for handsome awards. There will also be novelty races, comedy stunts, exhibition diving, etc. The pool will be available for ordinary swimming from 9 to 11 o'clock, while dancing on both dance floors will be held from 12 to 12, two special orchestras being in attendance. Children will be admitted without a ticket. Either night the Royal Theatre will hold special matinees in conjunction with the concert party of H.M.S. Dragon where they will put on a special programme. All Canadian Super-walkers, Indian club juggler and strong man, will take a big place on the bill each day. During the day the miniature golf clubs and the bowling alley of the city will be open to all ticket holders. Saturday morning a lacrosse match will be arranged.

On Saturday evening there will be an unusual attraction at the Crystal Garden, with the judging of the bathing beauty contest, in which are entered many Victorian contestants. The swimming gala will again continue at 7 p.m., continuing until 9 p.m., while the bathing beauty contest will be held from 9 until 10 p.m. The dancing will commence at 9 p.m. and continue until midnight.

Purchase of a ticket from the U.C.T. gives the holder free access to all these features, in addition to the chance of winning a really handsome prize from the list of trophies awarded. These include a trip to Jasper Park or up the West Coast of Vancouver Island; a bedroom suite; an electric radio; electric or gas range, and many other valuable prizes.

If hard work and careful planning can accomplish it, the British Columbia Diamond Jubilee celebrations will surpass any previous festival ever held here in Victoria.

CHILDREN LOVE PASSION PLAY

Scenes They Study in School Come to Life Before Their Eyes on the Stage

Everywhere the Freiburg Passion Play has been presented, it has been viewed with excitement and then with awe and reverence by hosts of children. For them the presentation has a peculiar interest. The literature of their Sunday schools is replete with scenes which they have learned by heart. In it are real human figures. The figures are costumed and lighted as if by magic to the most gorgeous or delicate shades of the masterpieces. They open their eyes and gasp with surprise of it. It is a Sunday school lesson that they understand. They understand it all as well as the grown ups, many of them much better. Their acquaintance with the story and scenes is frequently more recent.

On stage, Adolf Fassnacht, Christus portrayer, is frequently the target of childish adoration. In New Orleans, groups of them stormed his dressing-room until he was ready to visit with them briefly. At Dallas a group of children "supers" attended a matinee, brought picnic dinners, and begged him to remain with them. Leaning on a cane to support a sprained ankle, he visited with them until it was time to rush away to prepare for the evening presentation.

The Passion Play will be performed in Victoria at the Willows Auditorium on July 22, 23, 24 and 25.

DOMINION THEATRE
"Never the Twain Shall Meet," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer South Seas Island romance, which opened Saturday evening at the Dominion Theatre, is a gripping story which brings out forcefully the old saying that east is east and west is west. The picture is the screen version of the story by Peter B. Kyne.

Directed by W. S. Van Dyke, veteran of South Seas pictures, who filmed "White Shadows in the South Seas," and "The Pagan," the fascinating romance has a real tang of the islands, the romance of the tropics, the struggle of the white and the native.

Conchita Montenegro, as the little island siren whose sensual charm weaves its spell over Leslie Howard, as Don Pritchard, is a Spanish girl of tremendous capability and sparkle. Miss Montenegro's dancing in this picture is ample proof why she brought down the houses in the capitals of Europe. Leslie Howard is the handsome, polished actor who made a sensation in both the stage and screen versions of "Outward Bound."

BURNS CAUSE MAN'S DEATH

Overton, Texas, July 12.—One man was burned to death and two others were burned severely when the Vitek Oil Company's No. 2 well came in afire yesterday.

Joe Wedemeyer, twenty-two, of Willow Springs, Gonzales County, was enveloped by the flames. The body was recovered.

Paul Vitek, forty, owner of the well, standing near Wedemeyer at the time although badly burned, escaped with his life.

J. H. Anderson, twenty-eight, of Cooper, Texas, also burned, is expected to recover.

Real Indian Chief In "Girl of Golden West" At Columbia Theatre

Chief Yowlache of the Yakima Tribe Has Leading Role in Well-known Stage Play

Patrons of the Columbia Theatre will have an opportunity to see a real honest-to-goodness Indian chief when they witness the screening of "The Girl of the Golden West," the first National and Vitaphone production which begins its run to-day.

He is Chief Yowlache of the Yakima tribe. He began his motion picture career under the first National banner back in 1925 when he played a small part in Colleen Moore's production of "Ella Cinders." Since then he has appeared in many motion pictures, several of which have been for First National and Warner Brothers.

Because of his fine tenor voice, Chief Yowlache is winning new laurels since the coming of sound pictures. Whenever a story calls for a singing Indian the casting director's mind immediately turns to the young Yakima chief, who was on the concert stage for two years prior to his entrance into motion pictures.
